Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for length and style, but without changing the intent of the letter writer. Viewpoints on all matters are acceptable following the guidelines of good taste. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, but names may be withheld upon request.

'Misuse of authority'

Dear Editor:

In the course of my some 50 years in Carmel, I have been remiss, I suppose, in never having expressed my views of local activities in the Carmel Pine Cone. Until now.

By this time, most concerned Carmelites are familiar with what will surely go down in infamy as the "Collins Affair," a shocking misuse of constituted authority on the behalf of Mayor Gunnar Norberg and Councilmen Mike Brown and Leslie Gross.

Their conduct in the forced resignation of our city administrator, Jack Collins, is more than an outrage, it is a violation of the public trust endowed upon them by the electorate. In defiance of overwhelming public support of the administrator's position in the matter, this "trio" played petty politics ahead of and at the expense of the public interest, and for this they must be held accountable. Gunnar Norberg and Mike Brown have lost touch with the feelings and needs of their constituents. Leslie Gross may almost be forgiven since he never had it to begin with.

Sadly, there are even recall rumblings throughout the village. This, however, is clearly not the remedy as it would worsen the wounds and hamper the daily function of city business. The answer rests with us, our neighbors, and all those who love Carmel, to remember the "trio" responsible for this, should their names ever again appear on your ballot. The time is long overdue to return City Hall to the people.

Says beach is clean

Dear Editor:

In regards to your article of May 10, "Surfer charges Carmel Beach is a mess," I am just back from a visit to Carmel, walked the beach several times. I have come to Carmel since I was 10, long time, have lived there at times. I have never seen the beach so clean.

As to glass, you could have a man with a sieve working all day 365 days a year and never get all the glass. He should see the Eastern beaches. I wish they were as clean.

The illusion of action

By AL EISNER

IF YOU'VE BEEN planning a vacation in the near future, you might do well to postpone your plans if you want to keep abreast of the actions of our mercurial City Council. If you own property in Carmel, or if you are concerned about the direction the city might take, stay close to home, because the overwhelming amount of pending legislation could affect you directly.

It seems the Norberg majority on the council is rushing headlong to adopt new, restrictive laws before time runs out. Aware that his base of support has been eroding since the election last spring that gave him his long-sought majority on the City Council, Norberg is pressing on all fronts to get his pet projects made into law before the voters have their say again in about nine months.

On Monday night's council agenda, for instance, are three high-priority items. (All are discussed elsewhere in this edition.)

The attorney hired by the city to create a rent "stabilization" ordinance has drafted the new law for council review and possible adoption. The controversial measure is likely to enmesh the city in endless litigation as property owners seek redress in the courts for the unprecedented action.

THE HOTTEST QUESTION in town—the scope of duties for the new city administrator—is also on Monday night's agenda. The matter took on tragi-comic proportions when Councilman Mike Brown told a Pine Cone reporter that it might not be necessary to re-draft the law, now that City Administrator Jack Collins has resigned. This incredible statement reveals that Brown's campaign to dump Collins was, in fact, a personal vendetta—despite his denials. Brown's statement certainly casts doubt on his fitness to serve on the city's sole lawmaking body.

The License Review Board might be restructured. City Attorney George Brehmer has finally drafted an ordinance that broadens representation on the board. His recommendations, however, have drawn fire from critics. The matter is scheduled for discussion Monday night.

Meanwhile, the planning commission is scheduled to once again take up the matter of clamping controls on short-term rentals in the residential district. The controversial question has been discussed at length. It's a can of worms that is certain to provoke heated discussion if and when it reaches the City Council.

Another matter that has stimulated endless hours of debate is the restructuring of the building and planning departments. Under a plan favored by Norberg, more work would be piled on fewer people.

TWO OF NORBERG'S other long-term projects are once again being discussed seriously. One limits the size of building sites in the commercial district. The other limits the number of square feet of ground coverage for new homes or additions in the residential district. Both are highly controversial.

There are other measures that have been discussed on and off that are in various stages of study before they come before the council and the public.

In short, a whirlwind of activity designed to "save" Carmel.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED as a result of all this activity, and what is likely to be the long-term result?

Because Norberg is disinclined to "jawbone" with the people who are affected by proposed legislation, the village is bitterly divided. Norberg's style, adopted by his followers Brown and Gross, is to lecture rather than discuss issues. He does this with the secure knowledge that he—and perhaps only he—knows what's best for Carmel.

Also, while we have the illusion of activity, our city government has practically come to a standstill. City employees, shocked by the spectacle of Collins' emasculation, are not functioning at full capacity. Indeed, the absence of a city administrator creates a vacuum at City Hall that creates even more confusion.

THE RUSH OF PROPOSED legislation has imposed additional burdens on the staff, to say nothing of the enormous extra volume of work it has dumped on the volunteer planning commission.

Enforcement of the laws already on the books has become a joke around the village. The building department, demoralized and short-handed, cannot keep up with routine inspections.

THERE IS THE SMALL matter of the city budget, which will be discussed and adopted, probably, without the benefit of a leader for the city staff. Department heads are preparing their requests, and a gallant, undermanned staff will try to make sense of it so the council can discuss and adopt a realistic budget.

Don't be fooled by the illusion of action. Carmel is not being governed by people with mature judgment. Their headlong rush can only create more confusion in the months ahead.

See why you'd better review those vacation plans?

BEING A MAN, it's hard to really understand birth. Now, I understand it, as much as any man can; 'cause when our kids were on the way, I had as many sympathy pains as most other fathers-to-be. She got sick; I got sick. She had backaches; I had backaches. She gave birth, and I sure tried. And the end product of our pains was alive, full of life, a new beginning.

Now once again, there has been sickness and aches, nausea and pain, discomfort and unwieldiness. Great labor, with much effort. And there is a new birth; a new beginning, full of life.

It started with the conception of an idea, and it grew, and grew; was nurtured, cherished, needed. Fresh blood fed it. And it was born with the formation of the "Common Sense Committee," right here in Carmel.

ISN'T IT INTERESTING that Seattle thinks enough of Jack Collins to give him hire, fire and promotion authority over 10,000 people, while the majority of Carmel's City Council didn't feel he could be trusted with 70?

THE GROUND SWELL of enthusiasm for the Petition for Initiative for Ordinance #77-22 on city administrators is more like an earthquake. And you know what imposing edifices earthquakes can topple!

DRIVING HOME AT QUARTER after five, the back roads were resting in the heat of the afternoon sun. The whole village was still. Most of the work day was done and it was pausing time: dinner not yet started, places not yet gone to, not yet time for the nighttime routines.

The trees were quiet. No breeze ruffled their leaves, and they also rested while the sun slanted through the green. No birds were singing, not a dog barked; the haze of heat hung all around the shingles, and the flowers were weak and drooping. Everything waited for the time of setting, when the ocean breeze would puff through, bringing twilight coolness.

The silence was everywhere. Its presence was felt, as well as being not heard. It rested on the town, a warm hand pressing on your shoulder, making you pause, sit, be still.

An oak leaf moved, and then another, and a touch of cool against my cheek as the twilight breeze moved over the edge of sand from Carmel Bay into the trees.

The mourning doves cooed in the eucalyptus trees and a dog barked, breaking the silence. A rustle was felt as the cool sea wind blew activity back into town.

The quiet time had passed. It was the ending of a hot day, and Carmel sighed, and rising from the brief rest, went back to its more normal activities.

I AM ASTONISHED at the "alternatives" proposed in the drafting of the rent stabilization ordinance.

The alternatives listed include a "small" tax on rentals or worse, direct ownership by the city of property to "subsidize" resident-oriented businesses.

If anything smacks of potential "dipping in the honey pot," this does.

PRIME TIME TELEVISION costs the most. Fringe time (before and after prime time) costs less.

If one considers the main downtown business area as prime time, then logically the next surrounding areas could be fringe time. Translate "time" into "rent" and you have a prime rent area downtown and a fringe rent area surrounding it.

Correction

The Pine Cone incorrectly reported last week that Carmel City Councilman Helen Arnold contacted former City Administrator Hugh Bayless to offer him the job again. Bayless did tell the Pine Cone that Councilmen Arnold and Mike Brown had both made the offer after it was announced that Jack Collins was quitting. But Arnold said she contacted Bayless only to confirm whether Brown had made the offer, and not make it herself. Arnold said:

"In matters of public concern, I believe in going to the source." She added that neither Brown nor herself had the authority to make the offer.

Rent 'stabilization' ordinance is drafted; Council will review it Monday night

By STEVE HELLMAN

CARMEL IS IN a "must" position regarding rent control, according to outgoing City Administrator Jack Collins.

Collins told the Pine Cone last week that when the council opened talks on commercial rent controls in April, it committed them to some form of action.

Otherwise, Collins claimed, landlords could have hiked rents overnight in a backlash of anticipation over rent legislation.

The council, in an emergency meeting April 16, voted unanimously to slap a freeze on rents on commercial properties, allowing only a 10 percent annual cost-of-living increase.

A rent stabilization ordinance is on schedule for the council meeting June 4. The freeze is due to expire June 16.

(A legal notice in this week's edition indicates that the council will discuss the question of extending the freeze at its June 11 meeting.)

THE PLANNING COMMISSION cut short its regular Wednesday meeting last week to hear a reading of the ordinance which has been proposed by Oakland attorney Myron Moscovitz.

At the special joint session between the planning commission and council, Moscovitz detailed the scope, maximum rents, allowable adjustments, hardship exemptions, dispute resolution and eviction clauses of the proposed ordinance.

Moscovitz, who teaches criminal law and rent legislation at Golden Gate University, called it "a moderate ordinance." He said it was fair to landlords, inexpensive to implement and nearly self-executing.

But Councilman Howard Brunn, chairman of the ad hoc committee on rent control, insisted the ordinance was no longer necessary and could be replaced with municipal rent subsidies. And Stephen Jacobs, a managing partner in the Carmel Plaza on Ocean Avenue, attacked the legislation, saying there would be "hundreds of thousands of dollars in litigation."

THE CURRENT RENT FREEZE and a "Use Change" moratorium were initiated last April when tenants in a few commercial properties complained to the council of 300 to 600 percent rent hikes.

Resident-oriented businesses were forced to move or close to be replaced by more tourist-oriented businesses who, it was said, could afford higher rents.

The scope of the rent ordinance, as Moscovitz explained last week, applied to property "devoted primarily to commercial, industrial or other non-residential use."

He defined residential uses as: homes; apartments; hotels; motels; boarding houses; mobile home parks; trailer and recreational vehicles; hospitals; extended medical care facilities; asylums and homes for the aged.

The ordinance would not change any provision of a fixed-term lease executed before June 16, 1979.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg asked: "We consider hotels and motels tourist oriented. Should they be exempted?"

"We felt it wasn't desirable to control room rents," replied City Attorney George Brehmer, who helped Moscovitz draft the ordinance.

Maximum rents would be based on the rent charged as of June 1979 plus "allowable adjustments." Base rent on new construction would be the first rent.

Adjustments could be made from unavoidable increases in maintenance and operating expenses (including insurance, repairs, property taxes, fees in connection with operation of the property and improvements).

Landlords would be required to give tenants 60 days written notice of adjustments to the rent.

HARDSHIP EXEMPTIONS could be invoked if the ordinance operated by "denying a landlord a fair and reasonable return."

This section opened a can of worms. Councilman Leslie Gross immediately asked what is a fair and reasonable return?

"It's a stumbling block to the whole ordinance if it's not defined," said Gross.

Moscovitz replied: "There are no numbers on this in California."

"But if you put in a number, say 6 percent, the court may say 7 percent is reasonable," he explained.

Moscovitz suggested that each case depended on the individual facts, which the planning commission would determine after hearing a landlord's argument.

Gross then asked about the possibility of establishing zones with separate rent ceilings.

Moscovitz ruled out rent zones, saying it would be disastrous to wipe the slate clean and require landlords to charge uniform rents.

"You'll inevitably lower rents for some, raise them for others and you'll be open to all kinds of lawsuits," said Moscovitz.

REFERRING TO THE "fair and reasonable clause," Norberg said, "What we had was landlords raising rents 300 to 600 percent."

"That," said Moscovitz, "seems unreasonable. It would seem that you could hold them to the old rent and it would be fair."

This comment drew loud snickers from the audience.

Moscovitz explained, "A lot of fears over rent control have to do with ordinances that roll back rents. You should know that I haven't proposed that here."

Under the ordinance landlord/tenant disputes would be heard by the planning commission, with the city attorney appearing on behalf of the city of Carmel or a neighbor if he determined they were interested parties.

The planning commission would be empowered to adopt regulations considered necessary to enforce provisions of the ordinance.

Norberg asked if the ordinance was "substantially enforceable?"

"I believe it's enforceable," Moscovitz replied. "It's one of the more moderate that I've seen."

Norberg then asked if the city attorney and Moscovitz should be instructed to draft the ordinance for a vote at the council meeting June 4.

Brehmer stated, "It will have to be an emergency ordinance to be effective immediately. Or you can extend the moratorium to avoid a gap after June 16."

COUNCILMAN BRUNN said, "My feeling is the ordinance is not indicated at this time. It's a very complicated, very expensive piece of legislation."

"We've never before put a price tag on legislation under consideration," replied Councilman Arnold.

Brunn, who is chairman of the ad hoc committee on rent control, said the committee had determined that Carmel had many good landlords.

He said the problem stemmed from only a few greedy real estate operators.

He recommended that the city subsidize a section of the commercial district for resident-oriented businesses as an alternative to rent control.

Referring to the rent ordinance, Brunn said, "It's money well-spent so far. What the council has considered has scared the pants off greedy people in this town."

"We should put this on 'hold,' meaning hold it over their heads," he said.

"My fear is that if you don't enact it, the greedy can move ahead," said Robert Stephenson, chairman of the planning commission.

"The threat is not much of a threat if you hold it off," argued Stephenson.

STEPHEN JACOBS, a managing partner in the Carmel Plaza, said the city had alternatives to rent control.

"There's nothing in the ordinance to promote service businesses for residents," he said.

JACOBS supported Brunn's suggestion that the city subsidize service businesses.

"At a fraction of the cost of litigation alone from rent controls, you could give subsidies to landlords to lease to services," he said.

"You could give variances to new construction that includes services," he added. "You could give subsidies to existing services to encourage them not to leave the city," argued Jacobs.

He said city services comprise only 5 percent of the tenants.

"You'll never expand this with rent control. You have to deal directly with the problem," he said.

"Put a moratorium on increases over 50 percent. There are alternatives," he concluded.

But Norberg reiterated, "We need something to hold off the situation."

He called for a motion and the council voted 5-0 to have the attorneys prepare the ordinance for the June 4 meeting.

Planners to consider short-term rentals again Wednesday

AN ORDINANCE that would regulate transient occupancy in the residential district is scheduled for discussion at a special study session of the Carmel Planning Commission, Wednesday, June 6.

At its March 21 meeting, the commission considered extending the present 30-day limit on short-term rentals in the R-1 District.

It was prepared to toughen the law after hearing comments from several local real estate agents who said short-term rentals were big business in Carmel, despite an old law prohibiting residential occupancy for less than 30 days. Action was postponed.

Jack Miller, an owner of the San Carlos Agency, told the commission that 29 percent of his short-term rental business is for less than 30 days.

Short-term rentals ranged from $450 to $2,000 per month, he said.

At stake, according to City Attorney George Brehmer, is the loss of hotel taxes on the transactions. The city collects an 8 percent tax on motel and hotel receipts.

Commissioners noted that the hotel tax required of hotel owners was not applied to the short-term rentals.

"If we don't place controls, I can see motels buying up R-1 homes to expand," warned Planning Commission Chairman Robert Stephenson.

ART STRASBURGER, an owner of Carmel Realty

Company, said in a letter to the commission that the term "transient" should be redefined from 30 days or less to six days or less.

Miller said in support: "If we had our choice, we would certainly prefer to have all our rentals for at least one month." But many guests do not have the time or money to stay here that long, argued Miller.

One homeowner, however, declared that short-term rentals make a mockery of the residential district.

Rose Feiner, who lives at San Antonio and 11th, said, "Who's to say in a few years that every home that becomes vacant won't become a rental?"

Feiner, who has lived on San Antonio for 13 years, said, "It's like living in an island surrounded by strangers. People just come and go ... it's like motel row."

Commissioner Donald Davidson said the city should not tolerate so many short-term rentals in view of the housing shortage in Carmel.

Stephenson concurred. "For every transient rental you allow you deprive full-time residents of a house."

Over the dissent of Stephenson and Commissioner Eileen Thompson, the commission voted 5-2 to continue debate at a later study session.

THE ORDINANCE set for discussion June 6 would prohibit transient use of residential dwelling units for a period of 30 days or less.

As stated by the ordinance, dwelling units include: all multiple family dwellings; condominiums; apartments; cooperative apartments and single-family dwellings.

The language of the ordinance declares: "The uncontrolled transient use of dwelling units would severely damage the character of the city by increasing disproportionately the amount of area devoted to visitors, as opposed to residents."

"Anyone, whether owner, tenant, real estate broker, real estate salesperson, or any other person, who arranges, negotiates, or otherwise acts to create a transient occupancy is guilty of a misdemeanor," states the ordinance.

It further declares that written notice shall be posted in each dwelling unit, except single-family dwellings, stating that transient occupancy is a misdemeanor.

Owners, managers, agents and homeowners associations would be required to deliver to the city clerk by April 1 of each year a statement listing the names, addresses and period of occupancy of each dwelling unit.

Exceptions to the ordinance would be made for a relative or friend who occupies the dwellings where no rent or anything else of value is given in exchange.

Transient occupancy will be allowed for a total of up to 60 days in any given year, provided the owner obtains a written permit from the city.

The Village:

Initiative drive to start June 7:

Will city re-define administrator's job?

By STEVE HELLMAN

WILL THE POWERS of the Carmel City Administrator be wrestled to the floor at the City Council meeting Monday, June 4?

The council, at its May 14 meeting, voted 3-2 to re-evaluate the 1977 ordinance which granted broad powers to the city administrator when Jack Collins was hired.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg and Councilmen Mike Brown and Leslie Gross also voted later to refuse a compromise contract offer from Collins which would have forestalled plans to trim his hiring, firing and leadership powers over City Hall department heads.

Collins, who came to work for the city in August 1977, has handed in his letter of resignation, effective 5 p.m., Friday, June 1.

BUT LAST WEEK, Brown told the Pine Cone, "It may prove now that Jack (Collins) is gone they (the council) may not want to re-evaluate it (the ordinance)."

Brown's statement came as a surprise. As early as January, his push to strip powers from the city administrator's post was criticized as a personal vendetta against Collins.

Brown maintained until last week that it had nothing to do with the man who held the post.

He said the council decided when it passed Ordinance 77-22 that it would be reviewed in a year's time.

A GROUP OF CARMELITES is currently organizing a petition drive to place the ordinance as an initiative on the November ballot.

"The petition drive is the only way we can be sure of keeping this ordinance," said Royal Adams, chairman of the Common Sense Committee.

"This town is angry at the loss of Jack Collins. We are determined to defeat Norberg, Brown and Gross," she said.

The Common Sense Committee includes Councilmen Howard Brunn and Helen Arnold, along with Carmelites Olof Dahlstrand, Frank Lloyd, Bill Doolittle, Fred Keeble, Bernard Anderson, Larry Morago, Claire Cross and David Hughes.

Anderson is a former Carmel mayor; Hughes a two-year councilman.

Hugh Bayless, former city administrator who served

"Now that Collins is gone, the council may not want to re-evaluate the ordinance."—Brown

15 years prior to Collins, has joined as an advisory member.

Ben Lyon, one of the founders of Old Carmel, which campaigned for Brunn, Arnold and Brown, is also an advisory member.

Mrs. Adams said the committee is in need of financial donations to pay printing costs. For information, people can write the committee at P.O. Box 3744, Carmel-by-the-Sea, or phone 625-0972.

THE PETITION DRIVE will begin June 7 with members collecting signatures in front of the post office at Dolores and Fifth. Additional petitions will be circulated door to door.

If signed by 10 percent of Carmel's 3,294 registered voters, the initiative would qualify for the next municipal election in April 1980. Or if 15 percent were collected, it would qualify for a special election in November.

(Annexation may be another issue before the Carmel voters on the November ballot.)

The petitions must be given to the Monterey County Registrar of Voters for verification, then presented to the City Council before Aug. 31 to meet the November ballot deadline, according to County Registrar Martha Riley.

The council would then have two alternatives: it could approve the ordinance as it appears on the petition or else it would have to place the initiative on the ballot within 74-84 days.

If the initiative drive is successful, the law can only be changed again by a vote of the people, said Riley.

She estimated the committee has until Aug. 1 to collect the 495 signatures necessary for the November ballot.

Mrs. Adams predicted they will get as many as 2,000 signatures.

BROWN TOLD THE Pine Cone the petition drive was premature.

"At the May 14 meeting, the point was made that people should wait to see if there's going to be any change," said Brown.

"Otherwise, they're shooting at something without a target," he claimed.

Brown said the city administrator had no powers until the council enacted Ordinance 77-22 on Aug. 5, 1977. He termed it a 180 degree turn.

"It was a very strong ordinance," he said. "We stated at the time that we would re-evaluate it."

But Brown then made his surprising statement that the council might forego discussion of the ordinance at its June 4 meeting now that Collins has resigned.

What is role of License Review Board?

AN ORDINANCE that would broaden the powers and composition of the Business License Review Board (BLRB) will be presented by Carmel City Attorney George Brehmer at the City Council meeting June 4.

A tug-of-war has ensued since 1977, when Brehmer was instructed by Mayor Gunnar Norberg to draft a law that would forge a more effective BLRB.

The council is supposed to consider the ordinance on a busy agenda that also includes consideration of rent control and powers of the city administrator.

The BLRB issues business licenses and some use permits for events including bingo games and parades. It also handles suspension and revocation of licenses, and acts as a loosely defined appeals board on business license disputes.

The five members are: the police chief; fire chief; chief building inspector; planning director and the city administrator who acts as chairman. A member of the Carmel Business Association participates in discussion but is not permitted to vote.

Norberg and Councilman Mike Brown originally envisioned the addition of residents and city commissioners to the BLRB. They were concerned that the BLRB was the only board composed exclusively of City Hall staff members.

BREHMER'S INITIAL PROPOSAL, presented in October 1978, gave the BLRB two new non-voting members. It would also grant duties handled by City Hall departments, the planning commission and even the City Council.

His initial proposal gave the BLRB control over:

- Abatement of abandoned vehicles, now handled by the police.

- Abatement of rubbish on private property, presently under fire department jurisdiction.

- Review of the municipal code and amendment recommendations, now administered by the council and planning commission.

- Issuance of rooming house permits, now handled by the building department.

- Issuance of permits for garage and rummage sales, now available only from the city clerk.

Under the initial proposal, the board would continue to issue, suspend and revoke all business licenses and grant permits for movie-making, parades, bingo games and the use of broadcast equipment in the city.

Brehmer recommended retaining the same five members, and adding two non-voting members, the city attorney and a Carmel Business Association representative.

THIS PLAN immediately drew fire from BLRB members.

At a board meeting Oct. 26, outgoing Chief Building Inspector Fred Cunningham attacked the idea of adding planning commissioners to the BLRB.

"If I were a businessman, I'd be scared to death to come before the board with those—holes sitting on it," he charged.

Besides Cunningham's objections, Vern Allred, the assistant fire chief and William Ellis, the police chief, raised doubts that the BLRB should assume duties from the fire and police departments.

"I don't think you should be involved in our enforcement," Allred told the board at the Oct. 26 meeting.

But City Administrator Jack Collins, chairman of the BLRB, argued, "I'd see the new board as a business license panel and then a sort of general hearings board."

Collins told the meeting he was uneasy about having a hearings board that was composed entirely of City Hall staff members.

IN THE NEW REVISION scheme, Brehmer changed the new voting members to: a member of the planning commission; a resident who is a holder of a Carmel business license; and the superintendent of Public Works, whenever an issue is related to his department.

Brehmer told the Pine Cone last week, "This gives the BLRB a little broader representation and coordination with the planning commission and board of adjustments."

The BLRB would be renamed the "Business License and Code Review Board" and given these added responsibilities:

- 1) To review sign violations. The building inspector is currently in charge of sign enforcement.

- 2) To determine whether a nuisance exists. Coupled with this will be a broader nuisance ordinance, under which the new BLRB would act in the first step to issuing a complaint.

- 3) Issuance of permits for temporary sales on public property. Previously under the board of adjustments as a full use permit, it would be a simpler permit issued by the BLRB.

IN ONE INSTANCE, the ordinance would take power from the council, eliminating conflicts in licensing procedures.

"The council can presently act without the BLRB in revocation of a license. Under the ordinance, all cases would first come before the BLRB," said Brehmer.

The council would still hear appeals.

Another aspect, which Brehmer called a "boiler plate provision," would empower the city attorney to issue complaints.

"Instead of the courts handling a complaint, I could issue a complaint on a nuisance, for example, with instructions from the BLRB," said Brehmer.

Brehmer said his proposed ordinance consolidates responsibilities and makes the BLRB more community oriented. The ordinance also streamlines details in the suspension and revocation of licenses.

"Unlike the rent stabilization ordinance, this is primarily administrative and not substantive," he said.

Brehmer predicted the only concern of the council would be with the composition of the new board.

THE BLRB MET MAY 24 and discussed the proposed changes. Except for some minor deletions and additions, the ordinance survived.

Chairman Jack Collins told the Pine Cone the BLRB will be more democratic. He cited the hearing function, centralized permit service and broadened composition as beneficial to the community.

He added that the ordinance even helps the city administrator.

"The police tow people out of the Sunset (Center) lot every Monday and Wednesday night when they come for baseball games," he noted.

"They have to pay a tow charge and fine, which they can appeal, which is very democratic," he said.

"But who did they appeal to under the old law? The city administrator, me."

Now they'd appeal to the BLRB.

Bids being sought for new seawall

BIDS ARE NOW being sought for reconstruction of Carmel's fallen seawall.

The Carmel City Council, at its May 14 meeting, accepted the bid documents prepared by structural engineer John Raggett.

June 5 is scheduled as the date bids will be opened on the $70,000 reconstruction plan designed by Raggett, owner of the Monterey firm of Steven H. Sassoon and Associates.

Schedule for completion of the long-delayed job is part of the bid. Raggett estimated mid-summer to be reasonable, given the number and huge size of the rocks that will go into patching the crippled wall.

Portions of the cast masonry seawall toppled at the beginning of last winter, leaving a 125-foot stretch of Scenic Road exposed above the cove at 13th Avenue.

THE CITY WAS AWARDED $146,000 in federal disaster aid and work began Oct. 5. But the council failed to put out the project for public bid and work was stopped.

Reconstruction was delayed further when the five-member advisory committee, appointed by the council to select an architect and engineer, became the subject of a dispute.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg and Councilman Leslie Gross argued with Councilman Howard Brunn over the makeup of the advisory committee. Before the issue could be settled, though, the council voted to scrap the committee.

Norberg was delegated the task of choosing an engineer. He announced Jan. 11 that Raggett would be awarded the $2,800 design contract.

Raggett presented his proposal at the council's March 12 meeting. He charged that the original construction of the masonry-type wall was an engineering blunder.

A completely different kind of structure was needed, Raggett suggested, to protect the 30-foot bluff in the 12th Avenue cove and to replace the crippled seawall at the 13th Avenue cove.

"Wave erosion" had undermined the original wall and Raggett said huge "desk-sized" rocks weighing between four and 15 tons would be the best replacement to act against "extreme wave condition." Raggett said the rock wall would cost only $70,000.

Councilman Brunn questioned whether Raggett's wall would still be standing in five years.

That will be determined in a design study underway, Raggett replied.

THE PINE CONE asked Raggett last week what final design had gone into the bid documents approved by the council.

"I recommended that only a portion of the wall be replaced, the sections in the 12th and 13th Avenue coves," he said.

"You have near vertical cliffs there and Scenic (Road) needs protection. Scenic is not in jeopardy above the stretch between the coves," he added.

Raggett said the soil embankment between the coves would erode an inch per year at most from the most extreme wave action.

"This year waves never reached the bank," he commented.

He said a rock wall with 4-6 ton boulders will be backed by smaller stones, crushed rock and dirt fill.

"Why will this hold up better than the cast masonry?"

"If you put up a masonry wall, it's sound against wave action, but susceptible to erosion around the sides and bottom," he explained.

"The wall itself needs protection," he added.

Large boulders will be sufficient as a retaining wall, while they're also a more flexible abutment.

"Rocks can tolerate a little movement in case of erosion. They're much better to dissipate wave action compared to a flat wall," he said.

The rock wall is cheaper, too.

"$70,000 compared to $170,000 for a masonry wall," Raggett estimated.

CARMEL FINANCE DIRECTOR Doug Peterson said the bid materials have been mailed to the Monterey Peninsula, Salinas and Santa Cruz Builders Exchanges.

Granite Construction Company, a large firm in Monterey, was contacted directly.

"We don't expect a bundle of bidders because of the mechanics of the project. The large rocks are a rather specialized need," said Peterson.

"The price gets eaten up on transporting the rocks," he said.

School district to honor two top employees

Two outstanding employees of the Carmel Unified School District will be honored with a special award next month under an annual program authorized last week by the district board of trustees.

The first two employees—one a teacher, one a non-teaching employee—will be selected by Trustee Clayton Neill Jr. and Director of Community Services Dan Yurkovich.

In future years, a trustee and a member of the district administrative staff will be joined by past award winners in making the selections.

Neill suggested the idea at the Tuesday board meeting as a "trial balloon" to honor deserving employees. It was quickly embraced by his fellow trustees, who voted to present the first awards at this year's high school graduation.

Employees must be nominated in writing by co-workers, supervisors, parents or students, who must state why the individual deserves the award.

Winners will be treated to an evening out on the Monterey Peninsula. Neill said he hopes one of the local service clubs will help underwrite the cost of the award.

Teachers, board negotiate pay

Carmel Unified School District trustees last week rejected pro forma the contract proposals submitted by teachers and non-teaching employees before opening contract talks with both employee groups.

The action came after a closed session at their May 22 meeting.

Trustees turned down a proposal by the Association of Carmel Teachers asking for a 9 percent pay increase, binding arbitration of grievances and other changes in the current contract.

The trustees proposed that the district make no additional contribution to employee medical, dental and vision insurance programs.

They also turned down routinely the California School Employees Association contract. It asked for a 10 percent wage hike and inclusion of policies on layoff procedures in the contract language.

HIGH SCHOOL, VALLEY POOLS OPEN FOR REC SWIMMING

The Carmel Valley Community Pool and the Carmel High School Pool will be open for recreational swimming Saturday and Sunday, June 2-3, from 1-4 p.m. Admission is 75 cents for adults, and 50 cents for students and children. The C.V.C. Pool is located at the corner of Carmel Valley and Ford roads, 1/4 mile west of the Village.

Both pools will begin daily operation for recreational swimming next weekend, Saturday, June 9. Both pools will then be open daily from 1-4 p.m.

The Carmel Unified School District Recreation Department will offer swimming and diving lessons for all levels of skill beginning on June 18. For more information on fees, class times and locations, phone the Rec. Dept. office 6124-3342.

Rancho Canada appeal filed

Proponents of the Rancho Canada Lodge project in Carmel Valley have, as expected, appealed Planning Commission denial of the development to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors will set a hearing date next Tuesday when they will consider the 175-room hotel project. June 26 is the earliest date the matter could come before the board.

The appeal was filed last Friday following the planning commission decision in May not to grant a use permit for the hotel on the Rancho Canada Golf Course in the Lower Valley.

The commission voted 3-3 on the issue; a majority vote was needed to grant the permit.

The hotel, a joint venture of Winthrop-Carmel Inc. and Rancho Canada de la Segunda Inc., would cover 10 acres of the 271-acre golf course now on the property. It is scaled down from the 376-room Marriott affiliated hotel originally proposed by the developers.

Vocational courses open to high school students

CARMEL STUDENTS will not be able to enroll for academic courses this summer, but district high school students may be able to take a full spectrum of vocational classes.

The Carmel Unified School District board of trustees tentatively agreed last week to allow the Regional Occupation Program (ROP) to operate summer courses this year.

Students earn credit, and in some cases, cash, getting on-the-job training and classroom instruction in the ROP program.

Courses offered by the Carmel district will include Agribusiness, Parks and Rural Recreation, and Motel-Hotel Service Occupations. Students in grades 10 through adult are eligible for the classes.

In addition, students will be able to take other courses operated by the Pacific Grove and Monterey Peninsula districts. These include Auto Body and Fender Repair, Child Care, Dental and Office Careers, Construction Technology, Nurses Aide and Orderly, Ornamental Horticulture and Restaurant Sales and Management.

The districts are permitted to offer ROP programs for credit but not regular academic courses because ROP is financed separately from other district classes.

The only barrier to approving the ROP program unconditionally would be if the state decides not to underwrite the costs, according to ROP coordinator Chuck Phillips.

But, he said after the meeting, most of the large school districts in the state plan to offer ROP this summer.

HE MADE THAT SURVEY on the advice of Trustee Richard Wilsdon, who, at the May 22 meeting, expressed reservations about whether Carmel would get back the money it puts into ROP.

"Find out what the Big Five (school districts) are going to do," he told Phillips. "If they're doing it, the money will be there."

Trustees delayed a final decision on the summer program until their June 12 meeting, hoping the legislature's plans for giving financial aid to school districts will be clearer by then.

If no state support for ROP is forthcoming, the trustees said the district will not pay for the program. Any local money put into summer ROP would come out of regular district programs during the school year.

BOARD PRESIDENT Clayton Neill opposed the whole idea on principle.

"I'm bothered that this is all we can offer for summer school," he said.

If the district is not providing academic programs, Neill said, it should not offer vocational education.

The trustees gave summer ROP tentative approval on a 3-1 vote. Trustee Elizabeth Bell is out of the country.

The summer program will begin June 18 and end Aug. 10 under the schedule proposed for the classes.

Phillips said three students are needed to pay the costs of the agri-business class, and 10 have indicated they want to sign up. Five students are needed to balance the costs of the hotel-motel service class, and about 25 are interested, Phillips said. Ten students would cover the expenses of the parks and rural recreation program and 20 have expressed an interest, he added.

Money that comes in above expenses would remain in the ROP budget for the regular school year, possibly going toward purchase of equipment needed for the classes or as a reserve fund, Phillips said.

ROP money must remain separate from other district funds because it is one of many "categorical aid" programs authorized by state government. ROP funds can only be spent on ROP, not teacher salaries, school supplies or other expenses not related to ROP courses.

Students try to boost teacher morale

By JENNIFER Mac LENNAN

Because of the promise of cutbacks and the reality of layoffs, the teacher and staff morale of Carmel High School is very low. A group of seniors, headed by Diane Wilsdon, decided to help boost the morale of the staff and show them how much they were needed.

Using individual contributions to finance the project, the students embarked upon the idea conceived by Diane. Every Valentine's Day, carnations are sent out to show friendship or love. This, thought Diane, would be the perfect way to show the staff that they are appreciated. White long-stemmed carnations were bought for each staff member.

On Friday the 25th, a group of seniors went to each classroom and presented each teacher with a carnation. "This is thanks from the senior class for all the help and hard work you've done in the four years we have been at Carmel High—just to let you know we appreciate you," the students said as they gave the carnations. The entire staff said later that the token of appreciation meant a lot to all of them.

ASB ELECTIONS were also on Friday. With cutbacks and a tighter budget, the job of the officers will be even more difficult than ever before. A 4.0 current junior will reign as student body president; his name is Art Strum. As vice-president, secretary, and treasurer will be Peter Kelly, Lisa Loder and Bob Aronson respectively.

The job of athletic commissioner is an important one; in this position, Eric Smith will recommend how the money for athletics will be spent. Mark Sanford will represent the school on the school board. Publicity commissioner will be Stacey Hicks. Two sisters, Janet and Judith Jacinto, will fill the office of pep and assistant pep commissioners.

Therese Lee has been elected president of the class of 1980. Paige Thomson will lead the class of '81, and Aileen Kelly the class of '82. The job ahead of them and all student body officers will be a difficult one.

Father Farrell's wisdom

A prayer for duty

By the REV. LARRY FARRELL

O Almighty God, our hope, our trust and the source of all good, instead of anger let us show compassion. Instead of rage, let us show concern. Instead of hate, let us seek change.

If to a confused and wondering world each of us will bring compassion, concern and change, then perhaps there will be love.

If we cannot bring love, let us at the least do our duty. Duty is the job we try to avoid, perform poorly and then brag about it.

CARMEL HIGH STUDENT Joe Victorine handled the brush-hook so well, the class elected him to hack through a thick stand of poison oak on the Mission Mesa trail. Here he's shown taking out a bush in one swipe.

RICHARD FLETCHER, 33, is the class instructor. He's shown holding a brush-hook, one of the trail tools the students use as part of their vocational training for park aide or back-country patrolman.

Youths blaze trails in city park

By STEVE HELLMAN

TWENTY HIGH SCHOOL students are blazing new trails for themselves and their community.

Linda Pylate, a 17-year-old who stands barely over five feet, is learning to swing a trail ax that packs a full-size wallop.

The ax, called a polasky, is used to carve pathways through the hardest soil, says its unlikely handler.

Joe Victorine, also 17, has mastered the brush-hook, a trail-blazing tool that takes out a bush in a single whack.

Joe and Linda are part of the Parks and Rural Recreation class at Carmel High which is cutting a new hiking trail through the city's Mission Trails Park.

The park, located across from the Carmel Mission on Rio Road, will have 4.2 miles of new trails when the new Mesa trail is completed next month.

THE UNUSUAL CLASS, which divides its time between classroom study and outdoor field work, is part of the Regional Occupation Program (ROP).

Traditionally, ROP provides entry-level job experience to high school students in vocational fields. This may include banking, nursing, cashiering, hotel management or, in the case of Joe and Linda's class, operation and maintenance of outdoor parks.

Park philosophy, park super-structure, plant and animal identification and conservation are part of the on-the-job curriculum provided by instructor Richard Fletcher.

"They're learning to be naturalists," says Fletcher.

With his beard and heavy flannel shirt, Fletcher looks remarkably like a junior version of the famed California naturalist, John Muir.

"Fletch," as his students call him, teaches biology at Carmel High. His ROP class meets in the mornings every school day at 8 a.m. Twenty students belong to the class from Carmel High and neighboring high schools in Monterey and Seaside.

The class is a success, says Fletcher, because the students want to be there.

For the past two weeks they've been hacking new trails through poison oak and overhead scotchbroom brush. They welcome the outdoor work as a change in their normal school day.

Linda, one of three girls in the class, likes the physical labor.

Leaning on her polasky, she says, "I worked with the YCC (Youth Conservation Corp) last summer. I love the out-of-doors."

Linda's family goes camping every summer, so the class is a natural extension of her interest in plant life.

"I want to go horseback into the woods, take samples and look for plant diseases. It's part of taking care of a park," she says proudly.

She hopes the ROP experience will lead to a job as a park aide or back-country patrolman.

Fletcher says the class is good preparation for jobs in city, county, state and federal parks. Students in previous classes have gone into jobs at Point Lobos and parks in Big Sur.

"We've gone around to see what jobs are available, what they serve and what are the qualifications. It's given the students a chance to see what they might be getting into before they decide," says Fletcher.

JOE VICTORINE, who has gone camping in the High Sierra with his father, wants to be a ranger in the high country.

"I don't like being cooped up," says the husky young man.

"This class helps make the rest of the day in school easier. This is really my best class."

Demonstrating the use of the brush-hook, Joe takes aim at an 8-foot bush of scotchbroom and with one ballpark swipe, he clears it from the path.

Students are learning to also use the shovel, hoe and a dual-purpose ax called a maddock.

They've built park restrooms and sheds. It's real

BLAZING NEW TRAIL: These Carmel High School students have discovered that school can be more than a classroom with four walls. The Parks and Rural Recreation class has taken field trips to the High Sierra, learned to identify native plants and animals and worked at the facets of becoming a park ranger. They don't mind the hard work. By the end of this semester they will have a 4.2-mile trail completed through Mission Trails Park.

physical, manual labor, says Fletcher.

The other half of the program is devoted to classroom study which provides a background to the fieldwork. It's vital, says Fletcher, that the students first learn the theory of what they will apply in practice.

The students, often for their first time, are familiarized with safety, first aid and CPR (Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation). The class is designed to serve them, says Fletcher.

In addition to the class time and field work, the group has gone on field explorations, including one week at Yosemite National Park.

THE OUTDOOR ASPECT of the class, however, appears to be its big drawing card.

"I'd rather do this than sit in a classroom. It's easier to wake up to," says Bruce Keefer, an 18-year-old from Carmel High.

John West, 17, had a previous trail-maintenance job in Alaska. His father is a surveyor.

"Getting outdoors, getting experience, seeing what it's like to work, it's all an extra," says John.

Greg D'Ambrosio, Carmel's City Forester, gives assistance to the ROP projects. "These kids are doing a real service to the community," he said.

"I don't have enough manpower to do this trail cutting. You can't use a bulldozer ... you'd destroy what you came to look at," he added.

"It'd be impossible for people to use the park without the trails," says D'Ambrosio.

Most of the foot trails in the scenic Mission Trails Park were built by the ROP classes and local Boy Scout troops.

KIDDER PEABODY, LA PLAYA SURPRISE LEADERS IN EARLY PLAY

Good ol' Science Camp caused the postponement of four games last week, three of which were Bronco (11-12 years) contests. Nevertheless, the second half seems to be starting in reverse of the first half finish with Kidder Peabody now leading the Mustang Division and La Playa heading the list in the Bronco Division. Both teams were winless in the first half.

Chip Aronson and Jeff Knepp helped La Playa bulldoze Pine Inn 12-0 and teammates Howard Maat and Rich Smelzer added to the Cubs' attack to squeak by Roscelli, 9-8.

Todd Nottenkamper pitched and hit superbly to lead the Granite Rock Giants to a surprise 8-5 win over previously unbeaten Sport Shop. Christian Juhring and Chris Meckel kept Sport Shop close with their bats until the Giants exploded for five runs at the bottom of the sixth to put the game away.

Kent Trunnell and his Kidder Peabody teammates had a banner week defeating Orange Julius 6-2 and Dick Bruhn 10-6. Trunnell was the winning pitcher in both games and hit two triples against Dick Bruhn.

Shoe Box posted an impressive 9-0 win over Dick Bruhn and then dropped Rudy-Harris 7-4. David Cuff was the winning pitcher for Shoe Box in both outings; however, they were deprived of sharing first place with Kidder when they were tied by Orange Julius 4-4 despite two key doubles by Perry Tarsitano. Mike Cox had a triple for Orange Julius and teammates Pietro de Persiis and Brandon Hudson had key hits.

Wooden Horse is within striking distance, winning its only game over first half champions Rudy-Harris. Eric Hanzelka had a triple for Rudy-Harris, but it wasn't enough as they fell to the Horses by a 7-4 score.

Panel pleads for free school busing

By KEN PETERSON

SCHOOL BUSING should remain free to pupils, no small schools should close and no teachers should be laid off in the Carmel Unified School District, according to the recommendations of two citizens' committees charged with looking at district budget reductions.

But while the busing program and small schools may escape unscathed, cuts in the teaching staff are still likely because of the magnitude of the budget deficit facing the district next year.

District Superintendent Carl Wilsey said last week, however, that layoffs might not be needed to cut the teaching staff by 13 people.

Enough teachers have left the district or will be on leave next year to solve the staffing problem without firings.

Fourteen district teachers were given layoff notices May 15. Others with temporary employment contracts—those without tenure in the district—have not had their contracts renewed.

School district trustees will get down to the hard business of paring the budget in June and July. Right now, they are still uncertain how much must be trimmed.

According to Wilsey, the big question marks are how much the district will receive in state assistance and how big a raise employees will receive in contract negotiations.

"We're still looking at probably $700,000 (in cuts)," he said late last week. That would provide a balanced budget, a reserve fund for the district to cover unexpected expenses, and a cost of living raise for employees.

THE CITIZENS' BUDGET committee reported back May 22 with its ranking of $728,000 in cuts suggested by Wilsey in February.

Ranking all staff reductions and program cuts in categories ranging from "essential" to "less important," the panel came up with $310,410 in cuts below the "essential" level.

None of the cuts are considered desirable.

Listed in the "essential" category are preserving the free busing program, retaining 13.2 teaching jobs slated for elimination, keeping library clerks at all district schools, retaining the high school counseling and elementary school clerical staff without cuts, and conducting district-wide performance tests of pupils other than those mandated by the state.

The essential programs cost about $434,000.

If the $700,000 figure is more realistic a figure, Wilsey said, the teaching positions likely will have to go. But, he said, most teachers who received layoff notices could be hired back because normal attrition will eat up the 13 positions targeted for elimination.

The citizens' committee chose to rank cuts in priority order because it "has decided to accept the reality that each item in this report may in fact become a cost reduction."

"Those items assigned a higher priority are areas in the education program that we feel should be saved from elimination first if the full anticipated budget cuts totaling over $700,000 be lessened either through additional state or alternative funding," the report says.

THE COMMITTEE'S own priorities are:

- To preserve the basic K-12 instructional program during the regular school year. (Basic is defined as those subjects or classes currently required or that lead to promotion or graduation.)
- To convert programs, whenever legally possible, to a fee basis so they are more nearly self-supporting.
- To continue elective, exploratory and vocational programs to the level financially possible.
- To rank reductions based on the number of students served and the cost to the district.
- To retain programs that are fully funded by federal, state or other government agencies.
- To consider non-staff reductions before staff reductions.
- To consider reductions in extra pay and overtime before basic salaries, wages and fringe benefits.

SCHOOL BUSING, with a budget of $169,177, was given a high priority by the committee because panel members feared students might not get to school at all if their parents have to pay for transportation.

An estimated 1,420 students will ride buses next year. If some of them don't get to school because busing is eliminated, the district loses state aid. Aid is based on the district's Average Daily Attendance (ADA) figures. The lost ADA money could offset any cost savings from cutting the busing program, the committee reported.

Other factors cited by the panel were possible disruption of classroom routine if students arrive late because they come by car or some other means, and the added safety hazard caused when students walk in traffic or ride to school with other students.

User fees for busing are impractical because of legal restrictions, the committee reported.

The panel did suggest a "bare-bones" budget for busing, with as few buses running as few times a day as possible.

A SEPARATE COMMITTEE of parents, teachers, community members and administrators studying small school closures also found that the problems more than outweigh the benefits.

According to parent Larry Moraga, closing either Woods or Carmelo school would save the district only about $30,000, "less than one-half of one percent of the district budget."

The district could not close more than one school, he added, because there are not enough facilities at Tularcitos and River schools to house all the additional pupils.

Overall, the committee decided that "the disadvantages outweigh the advantages to the district," Moraga reported. It voted 8-0-1 with two members absent to keep all elementary schools open.

He added that the question should not be investigated again in a year or two because of the "uncertainty" this would raise in the minds of staff and parents.

Carolyn Rice, a parent at Carmelo School, presented a petition signed by 131 parents from Carmelo School asking that the campus remain open as a neighborhood school.

Moraga said the main program with school closings is that it would not result in staff reductions. Teachers and students would just be moved to empty classrooms on another campus. The only savings, he said, would be the limited utility bills and maintenance costs required for the building and grounds of the closed schools.

While Carmelo and Woods may be "small" schools, the enrollment in individual classes is at or above the district average, Moraga said.

THE BUDGET COMMITTEE, which also includes parents, students, teachers, non-teaching staff, administrators and community members, found a few areas for budget cuts which would not have a serious effect on programs.

About $56,500 in programs, including high school athletics, could be placed on a pay-as-you-go basis. Also among these programs are driver training, Middle School sports and athletic buses.

Another $195,000 in staff and programs are listed as "less important." This category includes the district community counselor, some custodial staff, maintenance workers, a reserve for capital expenditures, an assistant principal at the high school, and clerical staff at the high school and district office.

"Important" programs and staff totaled $31,700 and include the Middle School assistant principal, librarian services at Middle School, and money for staff development programs for teachers and administrators.

"Very important" programs and positions include the elementary school music teacher, the lay readers who correct tests and essays for teachers, and Middle School counselors. These cuts total $22,400.

Ron Parravano, a Woods School parent who chaired the panel, said the committee would prefer the budget were left intact.

"If these cuts come to be, the district is going to be affected in a very grave way," he said.

But no one doubts that some cuts are coming.

New post office to open June 23

Carmel's new main post office will be completed by June 23, predicted Postmaster Frank Ledesma.

But the order for 2,446 boxes to fill the facility at Carmel Rancho Boulevard and Rio Road is still in limbo.

Last week workers were putting up the glass fronts on the 14,000-square-foot office, which will serve the entire area from Carmel Valley to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Ledesma, who has been Carmel's postmaster for nearly five years, said the new building will be the same size as the present office at Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street, but carriers will no longer have to work out of the old building's cramped basement.

The new office, built at a cost of $840,000, will serve the outlying rural routes (zip code 92923) and provide the additional 2,500 post office boxes (zip code 93922).

It will also alleviate the three-to-six month waiting list for boxes, according to Ledesma. There are 200 persons on the waiting list, with 5,084 box holders at the Carmel-by-the-Sea office. There is no home mail delivery in the Carmel city limits.

But the order, through the United States Postal Service in Washington, D.C., for the new boxes was stalled by the contractor, Ledesma said.

Some of the boxes arrived, but without frames. It could be a year until all the boxes are installed, he added.

The missing boxes should not affect regular delivery, though.

Youngsters in grades 4-8 can enroll in summer music, art courses for a fee

Children in grades four through eight may enroll in music and art classes to be offered at Carmel Middle School this summer on a registration fee basis.

The four-week program, entitled Kaleidoscope, is sponsored by the recreation department of the Carmel Unified School District adult school.

Children from throughout the Peninsula will be accepted with fees based on the number of classes taken. The program is scheduled June 20-July 18 and will be directed by Henry Avila, instrumental music director for Carmel High and Middle Schools. Transportation will not be provided.

Classes to be offered are: beginning band, intermediate band, stage band, beginning drums, beginning guitar, beginning strings, intermediate strings, chorus for grades 4-5, chorus for grades 6-8, individual and group voice lessons;

Mixed media art class for grades 6-8, art class in rocket, airplane and glider building, color processing and home lab techniques in photography for grades 6-8, and nature study.

A student may enroll in one, two or three classes between 9 a.m. and noon.

The fee for one class is $20; $35 will be charged for two courses and $50 for three classes. Some art courses will require an additional $10 materials and lab fees, and music students will be required to purchase instruction books. A few band and orchestra instruments will be provided by CUSD.

In addition to Avila, the summer school faculty will consist of Tom Williams, Jerry Henares, Joe Nokes and Ellen Collard.

Registration materials and information may be obtained at the adult school office at Sunset Center. June 6 is the deadline for registration. For additional information, telephone 624-1714 or 625-2911.

SHECKLERS LEAD TOUR

A popular Carmel High School English teacher, Paul Sheckler, and his wife Kay, of Carmel Valley, will lead a trip to Europe this summer for high school students.

Seven Cities in Europe, sponsored by Pacific American Institute of San Francisco, will include visits to Madrid, Rome, Florence, Munich, Lucerne, Paris and London.

Paul says they can accommodate about 40 students and there are a few spaces left. Anyone interested may telephone 659-4873 evenings or weekends.

TIM JOHNSON NAMED TO COMMANDANT'S LIST

Cadet Timothy J. Johnson, son of retired Air Force Lt. Col. and Mrs. L.C. Johnson of Carmel, has been named to the Commandant's List for outstanding military performance at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Cadet Johnson, a member of the class of 1980, is a 1976 graduate of Carmel High school. He will wear a silver wreath insignia in recognition of superior achievement.

Upon graduation from the academy, the cadet will be commissioned a 2nd lieutenant and awarded a B.S. degree.

GEORGE CZAR FUND

Several local friends of George Czar have established an account in his name at the Carmel branch of Monterey Savings and Loan. George, who worked at Carmel Safeway for many years before he returned to his native Yugoslavia, has written that he and his family were made destitute by the earthquake last month. Anyone who wishes to help may phone Ann Welchner, 624-2241 or 624-8225.

JAMES POOLER PROMOTED

Kathleen Pooler of Carmel Valley has received word that her son, James L. Pooler, has been promoted to Marine Sergeant. The promotion was awarded while he served at the Marine Corps Air-Ground Combat Center, Twenty-Nine Palms. He joined the Marine Corps in May 1968.

Barracudas score at Cabrillo

When the Barracuda swim team traveled to Cabrillo last week to compete in the AAU B Swimming Meet, Mark Reardon captured firsts in the 13-14 Boys 100-yard butterfly and 100-yard breaststroke with an A time. Kathy Tracy snagged first with an A time in the 10-and-under Girls 50-yard breaststroke.

In other events Mark placed second in the 200-yard individual medley and third in the 50-yard freestyle.

Other award-winning finishes were turned in by Tory Webster, fifth in the 50-yard freestyle; Hailey Franke, seventh in the 50-yard butterfly; Greg Solt, fifth in 50-yard breaststroke, and eighth in 50-yard freestyle; Jamie Olson, sixth in 100-yard butterfly, seventh in 50 and 500-yard freestyles, and eighth in 100-yard backstroke and 200-yard individual medley; and Ali Voskay, eighth in 100-yard butterfly.

The Barracudas' 10-and-under girls relay team took second in both the 200-yard freestyle relay and the 200-yard medley relay. The team is composed of Kathy Tracy, Hailey and Tanna Franke, and Monica Reardon.

Beach house hearing delayed

A permit hearing for four homes proposed along Carmel Beach on San Antonio Street has been delayed before the Central Regional Coastal Commission until June 25 at the earliest.

The application by Jack Patterson to build the houses had been scheduled for a June 4 hearing. The date was changed on a request by the applicant's attorney because of a conflict with another hearing, a coastal commission staff member said.

Patterson proposes to build two one-story homes and two two-story homes north of Ocean Avenue and on the west side of San Antonio. The property is now covered with grassy sand dunes and borders the Carmel Beach.

More information about when the hearing will be rescheduled is available by telephoning the coastal commission office in Santa Cruz 1-426-7390.

Students are this cop's top priority

By KEN PETERSON

SINCE DECEMBER, more than 100 students a day at Carmel High School have gone out of their way to talk with Detective Ray George of the Monterey County Sheriff's office.

He was selected as school resource officer last year under a federally funded program to introduce law enforcement to students without the usual "cop-criminal" confrontation.

A nine-year veteran of the sheriff's department, George went from car patrol and jail duty to the detective division. Along the way, he received a master's degree in public administration from Golden Gate University.

He was selected as school resource officer by a panel of school administrators and police officials, including Principal Dan Stevenson of Carmel High.

GEORGE DOES NOT WEAR a uniform or carry a gun on the job. He does not patrol campus, sniffing out dope smokers in the bathrooms or watching cars in the parking lot to catch tape-deck thieves.

His office in the administration building has an article about "The Judge Who Legalized Pot" on one wall, and sports and body-building magazines on the shelves of a bookcase below.

There, between drop-in visits by students, he explained that he sees himself more as a counselor and an advisor than a policeman—someone students can relate to as an individual and not a symbol.

"I'm not a campus cop," George said. "I don't preach. I just want to get a dialogue going."

His objective, he said, is to show that policemen "are just people, too. They're not out to bust everybody."

When he first started work in December, he kept a low profile because students expected him to be out patrolling the halls as a policeman.

It took a few weeks for them to realize he was not there to make arrests. Since then the initial trickle of visits has grown into a daily flood.

"We talk about their problems," George said. "I do counseling, advising, referrals."

If a student comes in with a drug problem, he said, he will talk it out and then refer the student to some other agency which may be able to offer help getting off drugs or working out a psychological problem.

Solving the problem is his objective, George said, not arrest. "If I can handle it at this level, it saves everybody time and money," he said.

ONE BOY WHO came in to talk took off his hat and dropped a marijuana joint on the floor.

George said they talked about the possible legal penalties for pot possession and use, and potential physical and psychological hazards. At the end of the visit, the student broke the joint in half and tossed it in the trash.

'I don't preach...I just want to get the dialogue going.'

He said he spends a lot of time explaining the law, and has copies of criminal codes in the office for students to read if they want to know what is legal and what is not.

"A lot of kids think it's legal to smoke pot," he said. "I just pass on information about it."

If a student comes to him and admits breaking a law—involvement in vandalism or a burglary, for instance—George said he tries to solve that problem without involving juvenile officials.

If the student is willing to talk with him, George said he will help set up a meeting with the victim of the crimes to arrange repayment for damage or to have the student work off the debt.

"They come to me because they know they can trust me," he said.

GEORGE, 32, has not restricted his involvement with the school to his 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. office hours on campus. He now coaches the girls' varsity and junior varsity softball teams. He also opens up the weight room on campus in the afternoon for students interested in body-building.

And he is likely to turn up at a basketball game or track meet in his off-hours.

He also arranges for speakers—lawyers, judges, probation officers—to speak to high school classes and will lecture himself, if asked to do so by a teacher.

At the beginning of the month he organized an all-day seminar on the juvenile justice system which drew 130 students from Carmel and other Peninsula schools. Monterey County Sheriff Bud Cook, Judge E. J. Leach of the county's juvenile court, Carmel Police Chief William Ellis, and representatives of the public defenders' office, state attorney general's office and county probation department attended the all-day session.

George said the conference got rave reviews from participating students. "At the beginning, a few of the kids were really radical" in their attitudes about police and the law enforcement system, he said. By the end of the conference, "It was a different world."

"Students' only contacts with law enforcement was getting a citation or being hassled," he said. "They didn't have any experience about what a policeman or probation officer does."

What the conference accomplished—and what George said he tries to show every day—is that "a cop is a person, not the Almighty. We're just people, too. We're not out to bust everybody."

While the student may feel he is being singled out and hassled, the officer on the street is "just doing a job."

At the conference, and in his daily contacts, George said he sees a cross-section of the student body.

"Some are kids who've been in trouble before," he said. "Some are borderline, some have never been in trouble."

HE KEEPS A DAILY RECORD of how many students see him. He pointed proudly to one column for "citations avoided": students he kept from breaking the law or whose problems he solved without resorting to the juvenile justice system. Already this month, he has half a dozen checks in that column.

His presence on campus has helped introduce students to other officers in the sheriff's department, uniformed patrolmen who may drop by for lunch or coffee and who end up chatting with students.

Characterizing policemen as individuals instead of symbols, explaining the law to students, resolving legal problems on a person to person basis will all help "make these students better citizens," George believes.

"Students are a priority," he asserts. "They're going to be tomorrow's citizens. They will vote, hold office, go into business. The adults will pass on."

George believes the program now "is a good one. It's going to get better."

George already plans a second semester conference at the high school this spring, on drugs and drug abuse.

He hopes to divide his time between the high school and Middle School either later this year or beginning next fall. The sheriff's department is requesting funding for the program for a second and then a third year through the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

River repair work to begin

Construction is expected to begin in the next two weeks on a flood control project along the Carmel River. Work is already underway on several others left unfinished when the rainy season began last year.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors awarded a $74,100 contract to Granite Construction Co. of Watsonville last week to repair the riverbank between Carmel Valley Road and Garland Ranch Regional Park. The repair is necessary because floodwaters in the winter of 1977-78 undermined the bank near the roadbed.

Rainfall that winter was 50 percent above normal. The problem was compounded by extra rain runoff from slopes denuded by the Marble-Cone fire the previous summer.

The county project will be financed by the Federal Highway Administration.

Meanwhile, the federal Soil Conservation Service has resumed work on restoration projects it began last fall at several locations along the river.

The projects were halted because rising waters of the Carmel River made it impossible for construction crews to work in the riverbed

VALLEY POOL OPENS TO BARRACUDAS

The Carmel Valley Community Pool has opened for practice sessions for the Barracuda Aquatics Team. Practices, at both the Carmel High School pool and the Valley pool are: beginning swim team members, 4-5 p.m.; experienced swimmers, 5-6:30 p.m. and the Masters' swimming program from 6:30-7:30 p.m.

The Masters program is for adults, young or old, who want an opportunity to develop their own swimming program with the assistance of an experienced coach, and to work out regularly under the coach's guidance.

As the beginning of the summer Coast Valley Aquatics League season approaches, the Barracudas are pleased to announce their full complement of swim coaches. Steve Allard and Chaco Mohler have filled out the staff of Thad Sigourney, Ron Gayman and Head Coach Larry Challis.

For more information on the swimming programs, contact David Hardy evenings at 624-3201 or Larry Challis at the Carmel High pool, 4-7:30 p.m. daily.

ROTARY CLUB HOSTS GOLF TOURNAMENT

The Awards Banquet for the 16th annual International Golfing Fellowship of Rotary Tournament, with over 400 Rotarians and their wives attending, will be on Saturday, June 2 at the Del Monte Hyatt House. A roast prime rib dinner will be served and the cocktail hour begins at 7 p.m. The cost is $20 per person. All Rotary members and their wives are invited. For more information on the awards banquet, phone Bob Bailey at 624-7727.

Mae Waldroup, owner of the Thunderbird Bookshop in The Barnyard, will speak on her recent trip to the People's Republic of China at the Rotary meeting on Monday, June 4 at 12:15 p.m. in the Carmel Holiday Inn. Mrs. Waldroup was in China for five weeks in March and April of 1979 with the Stillwell Fine Arts Group.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING AT FIRST BAPTIST

The Rev. Roy McBeth will lead an intensive Bible study course on church leadership for young adults at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays at the home of David Eagle, 25180 Pine Hills Drive, Carmel Valley.

Religion Without Hypocrisy is the topic of the sermon to be delivered by Rev. McBeth at the 11 a.m. service on Sunday. Evening service is at 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Potluck, Yosemite slides on tap

A potluck dinner and slide show on winter in Yellowstone National Park are planned Thursday, May 31 by the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club at Forest Grove School, Congress Avenue, Pacific Grove. Everyone is welcome; there is no charge.

The potluck dinner begins at 7 p.m. Guests are requested to bring a salad or hot dish for six people and their own table service. Rolls and beverages will be provided.

The slide show, narrated by Sierra Clubber Phil Helman, will follow the dinner.

For additional information, phone Salinas, 1-424-8611, ext. 296 or 449-0162.

GROUPS OF FAMILIES and friends gathered to picnic and enjoy the 15th annual Sunday in the Park, a pops concert by and for the benefit of the Monterey County Symphony.

FACE PAINTING was much in vogue and accounted for the many young faces with stars on their cheeks, moons on their foreheads and flowers on their chins.

Just about everyone was at the Monterey County Symphony pops concert last Sunday except Romeo, the mini-burro from the SPCA.

The large and festive crowd began strolling through the gates of the Monterey County Fairgrounds at noon. They scattered on the lawn or staked out chairs indoors. They lunched. They visited with friends. They surveyed the boutique items and fresh vegetables. The children cavorted after the Lady with the Thousand Pockets. And then everyone basked in the happy music of the Monterey County Symphony.

Only Romeo missed the festivities. It seems that he refused to get into the truck that would have transported him to the Monterey fairgrounds and the children who were waiting to feed and admire him. Evidently, Romeo is not so miniature that he can be picked up and loaded in the truck if she doesn't want to go. So Romeo stayed home and missed a fine old Peninsula tradition.

Sunday's event marked the 15th annual Sunday in the Park pops concert presented by the Symphony Guild as a fund-raiser for the Monterey County Symphony.

Large colorful balloons greeted arrivals and set the party mood for the afternoon. Adding to the color were the 30 picnic tables covered in bright red tablecloths and a generous basket of fresh spring flowers.

Inside the concert hall, which on other occasions is known as the agricultural building, 10-foot posters decorated the walls. They had been painted in the Toulouse-Lautrec manner several years ago by Monterey architect-artist Francis Palms for a production of Hello, Dolly, and seemed appropriate even if the Hello, Dolly medley the orchestra had intended to play was canceled because the music failed to arrive.

At one end of the hall were the posters which fourth and fifth graders in Peninsula schools had entered in the Symphony Art Contest this spring. First prize winner was Derik Wade, a fourth grader at Tularcitos School in Carmel Valley. Derik received a blue ribbon; a plaque will be presented to Tularcitos School.

Along one outside wall of the hall was the Guild Boutique and produce stand. Vegetables donated from the Salinas Valley, homemade bakery items, jellies, stationery, napkins and other articles with a musical motif were offered for sale to increase Guild coffers on behalf of the symphony.

By this time, most folks were ready to settle down to the business of lunching. And for some, this was serious business indeed! They were the people seated around neatly set tables with wicker baskets outfitted with matching silverware, crystal stemware and filled with pate de foie gras, breast of turkey and strawberries.

The Lundquist family arrived with a particularly well-organized meal complete with cake and candles to celebrate the birthday of Yvonne Lundquist. Yvonne and husband Richard and son Trygve of Carmel Valley were there, and Yvonne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Kunz, who live at Hacienda Carmel, and several other family members and friends.

Other groups had obviously stopped at the Colonel's on the way, while some relied on the fare available from the concession stand.

But most numerous were the families and groups of friends who spread out the traditional picnic items on a blanket—deviled eggs, potato chips, home-fried chicken, fresh fruit and cake—and snacked on them throughout the afternoon. The come-and-go eating arrangement worked particularly well for groups with young children who could be fortified between forays to the other attractions.

The Lady with the Thousand Pockets (Mrs. Alice Dutton of Carmel) was a special attraction. For just one nickel a child could reach into one of the many hiding places in her skirt and extract a treasure.

Two mimes in white face wended their way through the crowd making faces, dispensing candy and staging impromptu shows with appealing, fuzzy animal hand puppets.

Face painting was much in vogue and there was a constant line of under-12-year-olds waiting for this adornment. This accounted for the many young faces with stars on their cheeks, moons on their foreheads and flowers on their chins.

Those who had peeked in or had settled down inside the hall soon noticed the holiday look of the orchestra. There was Maestro Haymo Taeuber in a red turtleneck directing a brilliant group in plaid sports jackets, cerise pantsuits, bright flower-print dresses and even a yellow windbreaker or two. It was a striking contrast to the formally clad men and women who constitute the symphony during the regular concert season.

The orchestra had been rehearsing since noon and had provided pleasing background music for the festivities. But at two o'clock sharp the loudspeakers were turned on and the sounds of El Capitan March by Sousa, the first selection of the afternoon, came booming through.

If there had been any tendency toward post lunch drowsiness, it was soon dispelled. At that very moment the sun made its most valiant effort to break through the overcast and did indeed lighten the cloud cover if not completely dissipate it. At any rate, it suddenly felt warmer and a number of jackets and sweaters were shed.

After some welcoming words by Taeuber and his thanks to the Guild members, the lively music followed in quick succession: the William Tell Overture by Rossini, a change of pace with the Gold and Silver Waltz by Franz Lehard, Tchaikovsky's March Slav, the medley from Man of La Mancha by Leigh and Orpheus in the Underworld by Offenbach.

The familiar Can-Can prompted some of the youngsters to kick up their heels. By the time Sousa's Stars and Stripes Forever was played as the finale, most of the audience clapped hands in time, enjoying the music and feeling it had all ended too soon.

The 76 orchestra members now have two months of vacation before they resume the rigorous rehearsal schedule that will precede the next concert season. The season includes six sets of concerts; at Sunset Center, Carmel, King Hall, Monterey and in Salinas.

Most of those who took time out last Sunday from busy spring schedules to visit with friends and family, enjoy the music and enter into the special ambience of the afternoon already anticipate the third Sunday in May next year and the 16th annual Sunday in the Park.

Maybe Romeo will be there.

FARR APPOINTS KING

Supervisor Sam Farr of Carmel has appointed John King of Carmel to the advisory committee for the County Service Area 43 fire district, replacing Jerry Henares. King, a Pacific Telephone employee and owner of Carmel Coin Wash, is a Monterey Peninsula native and former firefighter with the California Division of Forestry and Salinas Fire Department.

The advisory committee recommends policies and budgets for the Rio Road fire station office serving the unincorporated areas around the city of Carmel.

RESIDENTS RECEIVE DEGREES

Recent university and college graduates include Thomas Michael Daskloff, Carmel, bachelor of arts degree from the College of William and Mary; Lesley A. Gould, Carmel Valley, bachelor of arts degree from Northern Arizona University; Holly Borden Tully, Carmel, bachelor of science degree from William Woods College; and Blanca Zarazua, Carmel Valley, bachelor of arts degree from Pitzer College.

FACULTY HONORS TO LOCAL STUDENTS

Faculty honors were bestowed on a number of local students who attained a 3.5 grade average during the 1978-79 academic year at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Students who received the honor for the first year received a bronze award. They included John Bradley, Christina Meckel, Teresa Walker, John Wozencraft and Stefanie Kaku, Carmel; Bianca Burford and Lisa Lockwood, Carmel Valley; Erin McFadden, Diana Marks and Timothy Powell, Pebble Beach.

Silver awards, presented to students who had maintained the average for two years, went to Richard Foote, Carmel Valley; Anne Calhoon, Elizabeth Hopkins, Christopher Lord and Philip Schneidewind, Pebble Beach.

Students who had maintained the grade average for three years and received the gold award were Susan Goodhue, Carmel; Samuel Davidson, Carmel Valley; Ann Bomberger, Michael McFadden and Kenneth Moller, Pebble Beach.

Richard Foote, Philip Schneidewind and Kenneth Moller received straight "A" grades for all four marking periods of the 1978-79 academic year.

FESTIVAL THEATRE RECEIVES GRANT

The Festival Theatre of California has received a grant of $1,000 from the Crosby Youth Fund, according to Nick Zanides, president of the festival board of trustees.

The funds, presented by Carmel Martin Jr., secretary of the Crosby Fund, will be used for the purchase of office equipment.

"This support of the Crosby Youth Fund is another step toward our goal of opening the theatre in 1980," Zanides said.

SCOUTS EARN CYCLING BADGE

It was a rather long bike ride—50 miles long to be exact—but at the end of it, 12 Boy Scouts from Carmel Troop 3 had completed their cycling merit badge.

The group started at Vernalis one Saturday at 9:20 a.m. and proceeded south along the California State Aqueduct Bikeway

Vehicles, animals barred from schools

Unauthorized vehicles and animals will be barred from school campuses with a new policy approved by Carmel school district trustees last week.

The action is aimed at preventing damage to school grounds or possible injury to pupils.

Banned on all campuses and property owned by the district are:

- Riding horses on paved or unpaved areas.
- Allowing dogs to run loose.
- Use or consumption of alcoholic beverages.
- Use of skateboards or roller skates during school hours.
- Driving licensed motor vehicles on lawns and other unauthorized areas.
- Driving go-karts and other unlicensed vehicles at any time or place.

The policy allows District Superintendent Carl Wilsey to grant specific exceptions.

on the specially constructed cycle path. Seven hours and 10 minutes later they reached their goal at the O'Neill Forebay on the San Luis Reservoir.

Participating in the marathon event were Van Crego, Mike White, Clifton Bonner, Winston Aucutt, Jerry Hu, Addison Phillips, Steven Abell, Daniel Hu, Vlad Lewis, Richard Han, Philip Wong, and Sigfried Lackner.

CUSD TEACHERS TAKE LEAVE

Three more Carmel school district teachers will take leaves of absence next year, in actions approved by school trustees last week. Middle School home economics teacher Barbara Morris will be on leave, along with Mariday Bridges LeValley, a Carmel High School teacher, and River School teacher Julie Foudy, who will take maternity leave next year. Mrs. Foudy expects to return to teaching next spring. The other two teachers will be on leave for the full year.

JEAN THOMAS ATTENDS MILITARY CONFERENCE

Jean L. Thomas of Carmel Valley has attended a Joint Civilian Orientation Conference at Arlington, Va. The conference, sponsored by the U.S. Defense Department, is to get civilian advice and observations, and to inform them of defense readiness and resource use.

The program offers civilians first-hand looks at armed forces capabilities and personnel with military tours and meetings with Pentagon officials to assess defense programs.

Conference participants toured Offutt Air Force Base in Fort Hood, Texas, and Camp LeJeune, in Norfolk, Va., and concluded with a meeting at the Pentagon with senior officials of the Department of Defense.

YORK HONOR ROLL ANNOUNCED

The York School in Monterey has announced awards for academic achievement in the second trimester of the school year. Students attaining High Honors were:

Carmel: Sharon Lee, Carol Lloyd, Sioban Scanlon, Karen Weitzman, Leora Weitzman. Pebble Beach: Stephen Cocker. Student on the Honors list include:

Carmel: Jennifer Beck, Lillian Dean, Ladan Emami, Stephen Henderson, Sylvia Laurmann, Joanna Lee, Henry McCusker, Nina McCusker, Patricia Meem, Karen Ann Parker, Michael Roberts, Daisy Smith. Carmel Valley: Laura Bennett, Cynthia Marshall, Arthur Muir, Martha Sawhill. Pebble Beach: Gemma Valdez.

FRANCES HARVEY NAMED PEN WOMAN

Frances Ford Harvey, wife of Brig. Gen. Clarence C. Harvey of Pebble Beach, has been accepted into the National League of American Pen Women Inc., an organization of professional women writers and artists. Mrs. Harvey, a longtime area resident, has been recognized by the Washington, D.C., organization for her feature articles, many of them about the Monterey Peninsula. She is currently writing a historical romance set locally at the time of Robert Louis Stevenson.

U.C. DAVIS ANNOUNCES HONOR LIST

Students at the University of California, Davis, who have been named to the dean's honor list for grades earned during the winter quarter include: Kenjie Amemiya, James Martin Irwin and Robert Allen Dunn, Carmel; James Bruce Walsh, Alexander Drake Blevens, David Robert Engelbrecht and Kimberly Ann Von Berg, Carmel Valley.

MOLLY ERICKSON WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Molly Erickson, the daughter of John and Carole Erickson of Carmel and a senior at Santa Catalina School, has been awarded a scholarship by Whitman College.

The four-year, renewable stipend, the Claire Sherwood Memorial Scholarship, was given to Molly in recognition of her academic and extracurricular achievements during high school.

Whitman College is a privately endowed, non-denominational institution with an enrollment of 1,100 located in Walla Walla, Wash.

SUNSET SCHOOL GRADUATES

Next Thursday will mark the passing of another milestone on the broadening highway of life for 34 young Carmelites who on that day will bring to a close eight years of grammar school study, turn their faces hopefully toward greater endeavor, and put childhood behind them.

O. W. Bardson, principal of the Sunset school will give a short talk and diplomas will be presented by the president of the board, Frederick Bigland. Commencement exercises are to be especially poignant to the faculty and students this year in that they also will mark the close of active teaching of Miss Mary Powers.

VAGABOND CAR CAUGHT BY GUS ON HIS HORSE

A stern chase is a hard chase.

Chief of Police Gus Englund, mounted, galloped after a loose automobile last Saturday, and caught it before it damaged itself or anyone else to a serious extent. This was on Ocean Avenue at a busy time in the afternoon. The car had been parked at the curb, but without proper application of the brakes. Under the power of gravity, it started away toward the ocean.

Englund was a block away when the alarm was given, but took in the situation at a glance. Whirling his steed, he dashed in pursuit. The car was gaining headway with every minute, and people in cars or afoot were threatened by its vagaries.

Finally Gus came alongside and swung into the car, leaving his well-trained horse to stand on the reins. With quick but certain judgment, he swung the car to bump head-on into one of the larger trees of the center parking area of the avenue. The tree held.

AS YOU LIKE IT CAST

As You Like It will be presented in the Forest Theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 1-3, and again July 8-10. This enchanting comedy of wit and love in the Forest of Arden is so perfectly suited to the Forest Theater that it seems strange it has not been given there long before. Yet only three of the 22 scenes have ever been staged there—two in 1912 and one in 1945. This will be the first production of the play as a whole.

STEVENSON SCHOOL HAS FIRST COMMENCEMENT

Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach will hold its first commencement exercises Wednesday morning at 11 a.m. in the outdoor theater.

Diplomas will be awarded by Headmaster Robert Ricklefs to the four senior boys who make up the school's first graduating class. Prizes will be presented by faculty members and music performed by the school orchestra.

HATTON CANYON CORRIDOR STILL A POSSIBILITY

Last night the Carmel City Council heard reports on a proposal for scenic highway treatment of the road which the State Highway Department has long planned to construct in what is called the Hatton Canyon Corridor.

It was pointed out that the City Council once passed a resolution which asked the state legislature to amend the California Streets and Highways Code that the freeway would be stopped at Carmel Hill which it has now reached. The state legislature has so far not made the change which both Carmel and Monterey have long sought.

Consequently the portion of Highway 1 from the top of Carmel Hill to the Carmel River, could still eventually become the kind of full freeway which most Carmelites have long wanted to prevent, unless meanwhile the Streets and Highway Code can be appropriately amended by the state legislature.

PANHANDLER HITS WRONG PROSPECT

A long-haired male panhandler asked a lady for a handout on Ocean Avenue Monday afternoon. Which was a mistake—a serious mistake.

It was a mistake because the lady was the wife of Carmel's chief of police, Clyde Klaumann. She told the panhandler, "Why should I work for your living?" Then she marched in to Fortier's Drug Store and telephoned the police station. Sergeant Wermuth responded immediately and Mrs. Klaumann made a citizen's arrest.

The panhandler wound up with a 30-day sentence, 20 days of which were suspended.

Padres win Central Coast baseball title after long drought

By JAY POSNER

BEHIND THE PITCHING performance of senior Pat Kelly, the Carmel High varsity baseball team routed Monterey High 9-3 last Friday night at Salinas Municipal Stadium in the Central Coast Section Region IV finals.

By virtue of their win, the Padres (19-4) now advance to the CCS semifinals tomorrow evening at 5 p.m. at PAL Stadium in San Jose. The Padres' opponent will be Region I champions El Camino High (18-7), who defeated Burlingame High 13-5 in the finals.

In the other semifinal game, Branham High (19-5) will take on Monta Vista High at 8 p.m. Branham edged Oak Grove High 5-4 to win Region III, while Monta Vista downed Carmel High 5-2 to take the Region II title.

The semifinal winners will meet at 8 p.m. Saturday night at PAL Stadium, and the losers will play at 5:30 for third place.

Against Monterey, Kelly, who is now 9-1 for the season, hurled no-hit ball for over four innings before Paul Compagno lined a single to center. However, in the top of the second, the Toreadores had scored a run without a hit. Kelly struck out Rudy Johnson to open the inning, but when catcher Paul St. Germaine dropped the ball and fired to first baseman Mike Wecker, Wecker dropped the ball, allowing Johnson to reach first safely. Johnson then stole second, went to third on a groundout, and scored on a wild pitch.

CARMEL CAME BACK with four runs in the third on four hits, including a triple by John Lucido and a double by Dave Spear. St. Germaine led off with a single and scored on Lucido's triple to left centerfield. Spear doubled in Lucido, and then Monterey starting pitcher Mike Aldrete walked Mike Odello and Neil Vandervort to load the bases. After Wecker popped out, Spear was thrown out on an unsuccessful squeeze play. But Joe Limov followed with an RBI single and the fourth run scored on an error by shortstop Mark Cummins.

Bobby Johnson came in to pitch the fourth for the Toreadores, but he pitched to only three batters: St. Germaine, Lucido and Spear, walking them all before Gary Powers relieved him. Powers struck out Odello, but Cummins allowed another run to score when he let Vandervort's grounder go through his legs.

Then came the weirdest play of the game.

Wecker hit a little blooper in front of first base. Aldrete appeared to try to drop the ball so he could try to get one of the lead runners, but the umpires ruled that he had caught the ball. Aldrete then looked at first where he saw Vandervort about 10 feet off the bag. While he tried to tag Vandervort, Lucido raced home with the sixth Padre run. When Aldrete went to argue with the ump at second, Spear raced home with the run that made the score 7-1.

Monterey loaded the bases with one out in the fifth, but Kelly got Aldrete to ground to first (although a run scored) and then he struck out cleanup hitter Brian Lackey.

With one out in the fifth, Lucido dropped a perfect bunt in front of the plate. Compagno, the Toreadore catcher, threw the ball into right field, allowing Lucido to head for second. When right fielder Mark Pavlov threw the ball into left, Lucido raced over to third, and then scored on Spear's second hit of the night, a ground single to right. Spear then stole second (one of Carmel's 13 stolen bases for the game) and scored on Odello's fly to deep center.

Compagno led off the seventh with a walk and Don Burney followed with Monterey's third hit of the game, a single to right. After Cummins struck out, Aldrete hit a grounder to second that went right through Limov's legs. Compagno scored and Monterey fans sensed a comeback. But Kelly quickly ended the game by inducing Lackey to hit a one-hopper to short that turned into a Lucido to Limov to Wecker double play and gave Padre Coach Monty Feekes his first Region IV title.

IN THE PADRES' semifinal contest, they blanked Baymonte Christian High of Scotts Valley 7-0. Greg Raynes, Kelly and Buz Fulton combined for a two-hitter to lead the victory.

The Padres took an early lead when they scored two unearned runs in the bottom of the third. Baymonte came back in the fifth when they loaded the bases with two out against Raynes. Feekes called in Kelly and the Padre ace threw only three pitches, the third being a curve that Lee Stoeckle hit in the air to Odello in right.

Carmel added four runs in their half of the fifth, the big hit being a 360-foot home run by Wecker that drove in two runs. The Padres final run scored on a line drive doubled by Lucido in the sixth.

THERE ARE TIMES when a writer doesn't mind eating his words. One of those times came last Thursday in Aptos when, after I had written that the Carmel High's tennis team chances to win the CCS championship were unlikely, the Padres went out and edged Gunn High of Palo Alto 4-3 to capture the CCS title.

I had picked Gunn to win because the Titans had won 200 straight matches—and every CCS crown—including a 5-2 win over the Padres early in the season.

However, Carmel had played that match without Jim Heebner and Frank Collas, and both players won on Thursday. Heebner destroyed John Saviano 6-0, 6-4 in number one singles and Collas blasted Ken Arnold 6-3, 6-2 in number five singles.

Gunn had taken a 3-2 lead on wins in number two and number four singles and number two doubles, but the Padres' number one doubles team of Rico and Olad deRouen evened the match by defeating Dave Tabor and Matt Porteus 7-6 (5-3 in the tiebreaker), 6-4.

The match was decided when Carmel's Erick Collas, who was up 5-0 in the third set when he found out his match would decide the championship, held on to defeat Kip Au 6-2, 0-6, 6-1.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP may be a sign of things to come in the next few years, for the Padres because only Erick Collas and Jan Doelman (#2 doubles) will graduate next week. Adam Sherburne (#2 singles) is a junior, Heebner, Anthony Galang (#4 singles), Frank Collas, and Rico deRouen are sophomores, and Olaf deRouen and Mike Robertson (#2 doubles) are only freshmen.

Carmel had earned the right to meet Gunn by downing Aragon High 5-2 Tuesday at Aptos. Sherburne, Galang and the Collas brothers won singles matches, while the deRouen team was victorious in doubles.

IN GOLF ACTION, the Padres' season ended on a sour note when they were defeated 395-397 by Monterey High in the Region IV playoffs. The match, which also included Harbor High, was played last Tuesday at the DeLaveaga Golf Course in Santa Cruz.

Mat Arcoleo paced the Toreadores with a three-over-par 75, while Tom Lang and Frank Russo each shot 79. Carmel was led by Curtis Jones and John Pirote, who fired scores of 75 and 77, respectively.

By NAN BOMBERGER

FLY A CARMEL BUSINESSMAN to Santa Barbara for a meeting ... to San Francisco to meet a connecting commercial flight for a Peninsula doctor ... to Wichita, Kans. to ferry back a new aircraft from the factory ... to Arizona to deliver cotton seeds for a Salinas Valley grower.

Then, an hour practicing touch-and-go landings with a student ... a sightseeing tour of Death Valley for a family group ... even a scenic trip over the Peninsula complete with champagne as an unusual kind of bridal shower.

It's all in a week's work for Hallie Ruth McGonigal, charter pilot and flight instructor for Del Monte Aviation Company.

Hallie's progress in the once male-dominated field of aviation exemplifies a national trend. Women are filling an increasing number of aviation jobs in private flight schools and charter companies, commercial airlines, the military and related support services.

And if all women in the industry are accepted as readily and completely as Hallie has been at Del Monte Aviation, the transition will be an easy one.

"No problems. Absolutely no problems at all," says chief pilot Terje Kristiansen. "She's a highly competent pilot and she does everything our other pilots do," says chief charter pilot Jerry Correll.

And that includes the less glamorous aspects of flying: getting up in the dark at 5 a.m., spending hours studying instrument approach plates, and scraping ice off the wings in freezing weather on a windswept field.

BUT WHEN YOU HEAR Hallie speak of flying—the excitement of viewing the varied geographic configurations in quick succession; the satisfaction of functioning smoothly with the traffic control system to execute a difficult takeoff; and the thrill of watching a student separate himself from the ground and everyone else for the first time—you know that she loves every part of her new career.

Much of Hallie's success undoubtedly is due to her own personality. A tall brunette with bright blue eyes and a ready smile, she exudes the competence and confidence that would assure any passenger and inspire any student.

Hallie's father, an obstetrician-gynecologist in San Diego, owned two planes and often took his daughter flying with him. "I enjoyed it," she says, "but at that time I was showing three- and five-gaited saddle horses around the country." She was state champion three times in the three-gaited division.

After graduation from high school, she attended the University of Colorado and then received a bachelor of arts degree from San Diego State University.

Next came three years in France where she worked for the American Embassy as translator and executive secretary, taught English conversation to French high school students in a Paris suburb, and attended the University of Paris. At the end of this period, she had received the equivalent of a master's degree in French.

BACK IN THE UNITED STATES and fortified with a newly-earned teaching credential, she began five years of teaching for secondary schools in the San Diego City School District. She taught for another year at Merman School, a private institution for gifted children. By this time she had married Rick McGonigal from whom she has since separated.

Hallie is the fourth generation in her family to be christened Hallie Ruth (it's a name of Southern origin and reportedly from the song I'm Dreaming of Sweet Hallie). She passed the name on to her daughter, who was born in 1970. A son named Huff, Hallie's maiden name, was born four years later.

In 1975 the family moved to Pebble Beach.

It was at this time, Hallie says in retrospect, that she was searching for something—she wasn't sure what—to occupy and challenge her.

Then a trip in a small plane with a friend made her career choice clear to her. "It was a

Dry grass hazard

Wildland fire season opens

The 1979 Wildland Fire Season for the Central Coast has officially opened, according to Tom Perkins of the California Department of Forestry.

Though some fire-watch stations along the western edge of the San Joaquin Valley were opened earlier due to grass drying, all stations will now be manned on a 24-hour-a-day basis.

Vehicle exhaust contacting vegetation is the greatest fire threat, according to Perkins. He urges that the following fire-safe tips be followed by California drivers:

- Avoid operating vehicles in areas where grass is in contact with exhaust systems;
- Avoid parking on grass when the engine is idling;
- Carry a shovel or other fire-fighting tools;
- Inspect the underside of a vehicle for accumulation of flammable material after driving on grass-covered land.

Pony Club Horse Show Sunday in Pebble Beach

Happy riders on happy horses, to paraphrase the Pony Club motto, will come from throughout Northern California to compete in the 21st annual Pebble Beach Pony Club Horse Show, Sunday, June 3. Classes begin at 9 a.m. at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center at Portola Road and 17-Mile Drive. Spectators are welcome at no charge.

The event will offer 18 different classes in jumping and equitation on the flat. Under U.S. Pony Club rules, entry is limited to riders under 21 years of age who represent a riding group or club.

The show is the principal fund-raising event for the local Pony Club. Proceeds from the sale of lunches and refreshments will be used to sponsor local riders in regional Pony Club competitions.

Originally an English system of local clubs devoted to teaching young riders the basics of horsemanship and horse care, the Pony Club concept was imported to the United States where it has become so popular the country is divided into different regions, each containing numerous local clubs. Pony Clubbers compete within their regions and may also attend the annual national rally.

The Pebble Beach Pony Club is one of the oldest members of the U.S. Pony Club. Its young riders come from throughout the Monterey Peninsula to Saturday morning meetings under the direction of Tena Dunaway of Carmel Valley.

For additional information, phone the Equestrian Center, 624-2756.

Sea otter film and travelogs screened Thursday in Monterey

A film of the California sea otter plus travelogs that explore the southern coast of Spain and the bustling port city of Amsterdam will be screened Thursday, May 31 at the Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific St., Monterey at 2:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome; there is no charge.

The 55-minute program will begin with The Unsinkable Sea Otter, a film that focuses on the possible extinction of the once hunted mammal. Jacques Cousteau and his divers filmed the underwater life of this shy animal.

Costa de la Luz travels to the coastline provinces of Huelva and Cadiz in southern Herb Blanks to speak Wed.

Southwestern National Parks will be the focus of the Wednesday, June 6 meeting of the Carmel Foundation at 2:30 p.m. in Diment Hall.

Herb Blanks of Carmel will take members on a slide trip of several famous parks. A former mayor of Carmel, Blanks and his wife have traveled extensively in the United States.

Tea will be served after the program.

CHS seniors plan party

Carmel High School seniors will dance until dawn, June 1, at Grad Nite '79, an all-night graduation party at Marriott's Great America, from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m.

The Carmel seniors will join 8,000 to 10,000 recently graduated seniors at the Santa Clara park. Entertainment during the evening will include: a laser/rock show, disco on a 134x54-foot long dance floor, live bands and all of Great America's major rides and games.

All-night graduation parties have become a high school tradition and the Marriott affair is considered to be the largest in Northern California. High school graduates will travel there from throughout California and the Western states.

Busy schedule in June

NEIL RUTMAN, pianist, winner of the Carmel Music Society competition, will be the final artist in this year's Carmel Music Society series. Mr. Rutman, born in Redwood City, began piano lessons at age 12, making up for the late start by diligent practice and quick progress. By 15, he had appeared as a soloist with the California Youth Symphony throughout the San Francisco Bay Area with the Prokofiev Piano Concerto No. 1.

At 16, he began lessons with Aiko Onishi at San Jose State University. Miss Onishi has had the most profound influence on his musical development and under her training he won an extraordinary number of local, regional and national competitions for high school age students. He won the California Music Study Club Award in 1975, the California Bicentennial Young Artist Competition in Long Beach in 1976 and the California MTNA Competition in Los Angeles, also in 1976.

In the fall of 1976, Neil entered the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., where he studied with Cecile Genhart, a pupil of Edwin Fischer and Tobias Matthay, and graduated with a Masters degree in piano performance. Neil, a member of the piano faculty of Brigham Young University since September 1977, is planning to take a leave of absence this fall to enter the Peabody Conservatory of Music to continue his graduate studies.

For his program at Sunset Theater on Thursday, May 31, at 8 p.m. he will include works of Debussy, Mozart, Schumann, Chopin and Stravinsky. Tickets are available by calling 624-2085.

AUDITIONS FOR THE Festival of Firsts second annual playwriting production of the prize-winning play, Show Me A Hero, by Sally Weiner, will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 4-6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sunset Theater.

One of the judges, Robert Emmett of New York, said, "Show Me A Hero is a honey of a play, and by far the best thing you've sent me to read in the past two years. A lovely mixture of comedy and drama. A grown-up American play with heart and intelligence, a play that I feel could make an important contribution to lancing and healing the rancor that is still felt about Vietnam. Setting it in the 'reaping season' is a brilliant touch, and the whole farm thing of cycles and renewal is so healthy and restorative."

"I feel that Ms. Weiner could adjust the act divisions for better impact, and clarify certain moments of motivation, but those are things she should be able to do with a director when she sees the play on its feet in rehearsal ... and the actors will have a feast with this play. Every role is a pip!"

There are seven characters in the play and all parts are open for audition. The roles include three men's parts, two in their late fifties and one a young farmer; three women's roles, one in her middle fifties, one in her late forties, and a young woman. There is a part for a young boy. He should be between the ages of 7 and 10. It is a long involved part and needs some experience.

There is need for technical assistance and anyone interested in working on this production is welcome to come to the auditions. The playwright, Sally Dixon Weiner, will be here shortly after the play is cast for discussions with the actors and director.

Show Me A Hero will be directed by Cole Weston, who has been involved in theater on the Peninsula for the past 35 years. The performances will be on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, Sept. 7-9 and 14-16 in the Sunset Theater. For further information, phone the director's office at Sunset, 624-3996, or Mr. Weston, 624-2764 or 624-8140.

A COURSE IN SELF-HYPNOSIS (self-discovery) will start Thursday, June 7, at Sunset Center at 7:30 in the Bingham Room. The class, taught by Carol Terry, certified master hypnotist, will include techniques everyone can understand and apply. The course fee is $35 for five consecutive sessions and will give practical approaches to such problems as confidence, career motivation, weight control, smoking, etc.

Self-help and self-understanding are the main objectives and everyone interested in registering or wishing more information can phone Carol Terry at 624-0123.

CLASSES IN DUPLICATE BRIDGE will be offered by Life Member Robert Hansen on Tuesdays beginning June 15 at 8:30 a.m. At 3 p.m. on Tuesdays a beginners' class in rubber bridge will be offered. The usual duplicate bridge game will be played from 10:30 a.m. to approximately 2:30 p.m. on each Tuesday. All these sessions will take place in room 10 at Sunset Center.

I CAME ACROSS an interesting comment the other evening ...

Art is in one sense Fascist. It claims, on good authority, that some things are healthy for individuals and for society and that some things are not. Unlike the Fascist in uniform, the artist never forces anyone to do anything. He merely makes his case the strongest possible. He lights up the darkness with a lighting gloss, protects his friends the gods—that is, values—and all humanity without exception, and then moves on.

A FEW SHAKESPEARE FESTIVALS will start during the month of June ... the New York Shakespeare Festival at Delacorte Theater in Central Park with two productions; the Festival at Stratford, Ontario, Canada ... also the National Shakespeare Festival in San Diego ... and coming up in July, the Forest Theater Guild will present its production of The Tempest.

Telephone recreation line offered again this summer

A National Forest recreation information telephone line for the public will again be offered this summer, Pacific Southwest Regional Forester Zane G. Smith announced.

The telephone number for the service, available through the Labor Day weekend, is (415) 982-2222.

"The taped reports provide the public with up-to-date information on recreation opportunities and weather conditions on national forests in Northern, Central and Southern California," Smith said.

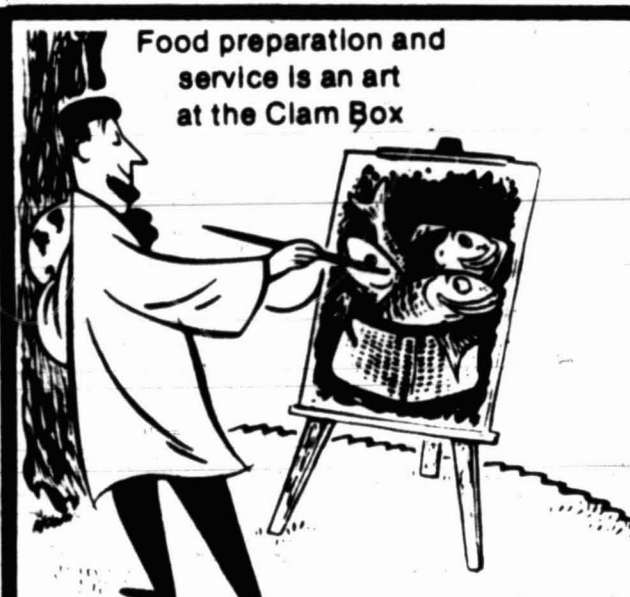

"They contain a variety of recreation information including summaries of campground availability, trail and road closures, permit information, special forest visitor programs, and other items of interest. Also, this is the first year we will feature a different forest each week."

The reports will be updated each Thursday for the following weekend.

GETTING READY: members of the Pebble Beach Pony Club will spend many hours getting their mounts spic and span for the 21st annual Pebble Beach Pony Club Horse Show Sunday, June 3 at the Equestrian Center. Young riders from throughout Northern California will compete in 18 different jumping and equitation classes.

Final performances planned for 'Carmen' this weekend

Final performances of Carmen, Bizet's romantic opera about a fiery gypsy girl, will be staged by the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble, Friday through Sunday, May 31-June 3 at the Hidden Valley Theatre, Ford and Carmel Valley roads, Carmel Valley Village. Curtains are at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Considered one of the most challenging and thrilling operas ever written, Carmen is the tale of an alluring gypsy girl who first teases and captivates, then leaves the corporal, Don Jose.

James Lucas, stage director for the production, says "Carmen is a very involved opera to stage. The beautiful music, complex characters and involved production requirements have combined to make it among the 10 most often produced operas since its introduction in Paris in 1875."

Lucas comes to Hidden Valley from his home in New York City, where he has staged the opera many times, including productions in Philadelphia, New Orleans, Central City, Colo., and Puerto Rico.

Musical director for the Opera Ensemble is David Effron, who is conductor of the orchestras at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. Effron has also been artistic director of the Central City Opera in Denver; head of conducting programs at the Curtis School of Music, and guest conductor for the San Francisco Opera, New York City Opera and Cologne Opera.

Double-cast as Carmen are Rebecca Mercer-White and Pat Schuman; Neil Breeden and James Anderson will share the role of Don Jose; Lisbeth Lloyd and Jane Olian will portray Micaela; and Escamillo will be performed by Richard Fey and Peter Atherton.

Carmen is the final production of the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble 1979 season. The opera will be sung in English and performed with full orchestra and chorus.

Tickets, at $8 for adults and $5 for juniors (14 and under) are available at the Hidden Valley box office or at The Record Cove, Monterey; How to Do Anything Bookstore, Carmel; Lily Walker Records, Pacific Grove; Countrywide Crafts, The Barnyard; Gadsby's Music, Salinas.

For additional information, phone Hidden Valley, 659-3115.

Anti-nuclear benefit dance Thursday in Carmel

A benefit dance for the Society Uniting for Non-Nuclear Years (SUNNY) will be staged Thursday, May 31 at the Mission Ranch, 26270 Dolores St., Carmel at 8 p.m. The local rock band, JET, which recorded its first album in January, will provide the entertainment.

SUNNY is a local anti-nuclear organization dedicated to promoting alternative sources of energy. The group shares its headquarters with Greenpeace at 580 Lighthouse Ave., Monterey.

Admission is $2. For additional information, phone 372-8171.

Klondike ballads are featured in Carmel

The Klondike ballads of Robert Service and Samuel Hoffenstein will be performed through recital and song by Bill Logan Friday, June 1 at 8 p.m. in Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. The program is co-sponsored by the Poetic Drama Institute and Cherry Foundation Theatre Project.

Logan, who recently appeared in the Staff Players' production of Moliere's School For Wives, set the poets' ballads to music because of his admiration for their earthy views of the Alaskan miners' lifestyles.

Admission is $2.50 at the door. For further information, phone 624-7491.

Tantamount rebuilding benefit show Friday

Broadway stage star Suzanne Lake will present the Best of Broadway in a benefit performance for the Tantamount Theatre rebuilding project on Friday, June 8 at Sunset Theater, Carmel. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

Roles in The King and I, Flower Drum Song and No, No, Nanette have highlighted her successful stage career.

Her program will present best-loved music by Ger-shwin, Rodgers and Hart, Cole Porter and Charles Aznavour, including Shall We Dance, Summertime, The Sound of Music and The Music and the Mirror from A Chorus Line.

The Tantamount Theatre, in Carmel Valley, famed for its classic film screenings and puppetry programs by Francois Martin, burned to the ground Oct. 8, 1978. A non-profit organization was soon established to raise funds for a rebuilding project that would raise a theater modeled after the original structure.

A $5 tax-deductible donation will benefit the building fund.

Tickets are available at Lily Walker Records, Pacific Grove; The Record Cove, Monterey; Gadsby's, Salinas; Do Re Mi Music, The Barnyard; Carmel Music, Carmel; Moongypsy Cafe, Carmel Valley Village; or the Sunset Center box office at 7 p.m. on performance night.

For additional information, phone 659-2405.

Flamenco and Spanish dances performed Friday in Monterey

Patri Nader Bailes de Espana will perform an exciting program of Flamenco and Spanish classical dance and music, including the Bolero by Ravel, on Friday, June 1 at the Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center, Monterey, at 8 p.m.

Spain's energetic regional dances will be danced by company director Patri Nader and guest artist Cruz Luna. A student under Spain's finest dance instructors, Patri gained recognition in her native country, Australia, before forming her own ensemble. She has since toured Europe, the Far East and the United States.

Luna recently completed a season with the San Francisco Theatre Flamenco before joining the Bailes de Espana this year.

Vibrant rhythms of Flamenco music performed by guitarist Juan Moro and singer Isa Mura will accompany the dancers.

Admission is $6.50; tickets may be purchased at the Monterey Box Office, or at the door on the evening of the performance.

FLAMENCO DANCE will be performed by Cruz Luna, guest artist with the Patri Nader Bailes de Espana dance company, Friday, June 1 at the Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center, Monterey at 8 p.m.

Foundation plant sale is Wednesday

A wide variety of indoor and outdoor plants will be offered for sale at the annual plant sale at the Carmel Foundation, Lincoln and Eighth, Wednesday, June 6, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The public is invited; proceeds will benefit the activities of the Carmel Foundation.

Most of the plants have been grown and contributed by members of the Greenhouse Group which meets weekly at the Foundation. According to Greenhouse Group Chairman Fletcher Rogers, prices will be well below those of most nurseries and plant stands.

Among the plants for sale are fuchsias (some in baskets), geraniums of all types and in bloom, and several kinds of ivy. A local nursery has donated some of the plants.

The plant sale will be in the patio of the Foundation. For more information, phone 624-1588.

Music corner:

'Carmen' character is shallow, passionless

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

IN THE NEWEST major production recording of Carmen, principal star Teresa Berganza creates a Bizet gypsy that is thoughtful, self-possessed and relatively dispassionate. But Berganza's conception remains a deliberate and meaningful character emanating from a thoroughly digested understanding of Carmen, Don Jose and the relationship between them. Berganza's performance is strong and generous if not overly voluptuous.

In Hidden Valley's alternate cast performance last Saturday, Rebecca Mercer-White portrayed a Carmen of ultimate mystique. This Carmen, though well sung, was a non-character. Despite occasional theatrical gestures and inflections, Miss Mercer-White offered a Carmen that was well studied but diffident, haughty but passionless, imperious but shallow. And of all the principals Miss Mercer-White projected the smallest sound; the only one that was covered by the orchestra and even, on occasion, by her partners in ensemble.

MISS MERCER-WHITE is gifted with a clear beautiful voice that she produces with ease and enviable consistency. She is a most attractive figure on stage and displays obvious intelligence. But her Carmen was aloof and stingy.

As Don Jose, Neil Breeden was highly skillful in developing the character, and vocally powerful and commanding. His voice rose up to immense and dominating proportions. His success in carrying forth the music and drama won him bravos though at times he enjoyed scanty support from others on stage.

A major exception was the Micaela of Lisbeth Lloyd which matched the Don Jose in their ensembles with integrity of character and strength and beauty of voice.

Micaela is a difficult role. She is expected to be a timid creature who only transcends her fears when directed by Jose's mother. But she is also required to produce some large-scale and sophisticated singing. At times Miss Lloyd was a pretty, confident and secure Micaela. Vocally she was bright and winsome.

Richard Fey did not quite match the character of Escamillo. Musically and dramatically he was a tad insecure, part of which deficiency could be corrected by the adoption of a more aristocratic bearing. His loose-limbed swagger was ideal in Gianni Schicchi but Escamillo, while supremely confident and ego-arrogant, is a torero and always graceful and poised.

THE OTHER CHARACTERS not seen in the other cast were Thomas Mooney, Helen Centner and Nancy Jones as three of the smugglers. They were all first-rate; the two women, who have the best music, were excellent, both with strong clear singing.

As in the review of the other cast, the conductor was David Effron and under his direction the orchestra was exciting and vivid.

WE WILL HAVE A REVIEW of yesterday's Hidden Valley orchestra concert next week. To plan for is a series of such concerts on Friday evenings at All Saints' Church beginning June 15. Conductors will be Michael Zearott, Joyce Johnson, Terry King and Pier Calabria. Hidden Valley has season tickets now available.

At the end of June, Hidden Valley will produce Camelot and The Pirates of Penzance in cabaret style and in repertory through most of the summer.

Pianist Neil Rutman will perform Thursday

Pianist Neil Rutman, an award-winning California artist, will perform classical works by best-loved composers Thursday, May 31 at 8 p.m. at Sunset Theater, Carmel. The concert concludes the 1978-79 season of the Carmel Music Society.

The young pianist will perform Three Preludes by Debussy; Mozart's Sonata in A Minor, K. 310; Etudes en forme de variations, op. 13 by Schumann; five Etudes by Chopin; and three movements from Petrouchka by Stravinsky.

Born in Redwood City, Rutman began his piano studies at the age of 12 and soon appeared as soloist with the California Youth Symphony throughout the San Francisco Bay Area.

He has since won the California Music Study Club Award, California Bicentennial Young Artist Competition in Long Beach and the Music Teachers National Association Competition in Los Angeles. Presently a piano faculty member at Brigham Young University, he will enter the Peabody Conservatory of Music this fall to continue graduate studies.

Tickets, at $4 and $5, are available at the door on the evening of the performance or by phoning the music society, 624-2085.

Drummer featured in MPC concert

Drummer Roy Burns of Los Angeles will be the featured performer at the Monterey Peninsula College Jazz Ensembles' concert today, May 31, in the MPC Theatre. The program starts at 8 p.m. Tickets, priced at $3 each, will be available at the door.

The combined day and evening jazz ensembles are directed by Greg Janusz of the MPC music faculty. The program also will include performances by the percussion ensemble and the jazz improvisation group.

For the past few years house drummer for the Monterey Jazz Festival, Burns is one of the most respected performers whose career has included performances with Benny Goodman, Charlie Mingus, Woody Herman, Duke Ellington, Lionel Hampton and Gene Krupa. He recorded the recent hit, Big, Bad and Beautiful, and has appeared on the Tonight Show, Merv Griffin Show and Jack Parr Show.

For additional information, phone 649-1150.

Two summer programs offered by RLS this year

Robert Louis Stevenson School will operate two different summer school programs this year, Academic Dean Frank Keith has announced.

The regular RLS summer session, in operation for over 25 years, emphasizes workshop-type classes in the morning with afternoons devoted to sports and recreational activities. Dates are June 27-July 31.

New this summer is the RLS academic summer school, scheduled June 18-July 27, which will emphasize solid academic work for high school credit.

The academic summer school will offer courses in mathematics, history, foreign languages, science and English, as well as typing and driver training. All academic courses meet four hours daily, except U.S. government, economics, general science and typing which meet two hours each day.

Driver training meets one hour daily in class, with driving time arranged between student and instructor.

For further information and application forms write the Admissions Department at RLS, P.O. Box 657, Pebble Beach 93953, or phone 624-1257.

'On Stage Party' at Forest

Friends and neighbors of the Forest Theater are invited to an On Stage Party, Sunday, June 3, 4-6 p.m., at the theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

The purpose of the party is to provide an opportunity for friends and supporters to meet the directors and casts of the two summer productions of the Forest Theater.

The event is described as a "fun raising," not a fund raising affair, although a donation box will be provided for those who wish to help meet the theater's production expenses.

Wine and hors d'oeuvres have been donated. For more information, phone 649-4548.

Jennifer Lynn Elliott has been welcomed by her parents, Alex and Carolyn Elliott, her 3½-year-old brother, Sean, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Elliott, all of Carmel. She is the first granddaughter for the Andrew Elliotts and joins three grandsons.

Jennifer was born May 19 at Community Hospital. She weighed 9 pounds, 10 ounces

ALLURA FISHBURN HEADS CARMEL TEACHERS ASSOC.

Allura Fishburn, librarian at Carmel Middle School, will serve as president of the Association of Carmel Teachers during the 1979-80 school year. Bruce Stannard, a Middle School math teacher who has been president, will take a leave of absence from the district for a year.

SILVER CITED BY SUPERVISORS

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver of Carmel Valley was one of nine county residents honored by the Board of Supervisors last week in Salinas during Vietnam Era Veterans' Day ceremonies at the community center there. Also among the recipients was Ted Voight of Pebble Beach.

The nine were chosen for recognition by the Presidential Certificate Selection Committee established by the supervisors. All have been active either in county or civic affairs, community projects or human assistance.

ROTARY DONATES TO CUSD

The Carmel Rotary Club has donated $256 to the Carmel Unified School District for purchase of goal posts and equipment to be used in the recreation soccer program at Middle School.

RETIRING EMPLOYEES HONORED

Carmel school district trustees honored five retiring employees during their board meeting last Tuesday, pausing in mid-meeting to present plaques to three employees in attendance before serving coffee and cake.

Honored were Elaine Sandberg, a teacher for 20 years at Tulare and River schools; William Silva, chief gardener at Middle School during most of his 14 years with the district; Virginia West, for five years the coordinating secretary for district recreation programs and account clerk for the cafeteria system; Robert Parkhurst, for 14 years a buildings and grounds employee; and Walter Hinton, who left the district in April after 13 years as assistant superintendent for business services.

COBURN GRANT TO DAY SCHOOL

There are many smiling faces out at All Saints' Day

School in Carmel Valley these days and they can't all be accounted for by the approaching end of the school year.

The mortgage on the school building has been paid by a $7,000 grant from the Maurine Church Coburn Charitable Trust. The grant actually was made to All Saints' Church, which is the holder of the mortgage. So there are smiling faces at All Saints' Church as well.

CHRIS MORABITO HONORED

Chris Morabito of Carmel received a gift from the faculty in the nursing program at California State University at Chico last week in recognition of her grade point average, the highest in her graduating class.

Earlier in the day Chris received a bachelor's degree and a pin signifying the completion of the university's nursing program.

Rummage sale

The Carmel Youth Center semi-annual rummage sale is planned Saturday, June 2 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday, June 3 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The sale, in the Youth Center at Fourth and Torres, Carmel, will offer antiques, bric-a-brac, dishes, clothing, furniture, appliances and specialty items.

In addition to hide-a-beds, desks and sofas, will be a stained-glass window and a full-length beveled glass mirror.

There is no charge for admission, coffee is free and all proceeds go to support the youth center.

For further information, phone 624-3285.

Salinas Angels play Santa Clara

The Salinas Angels will take on the Santa Clara Padres in the last game of a three-game series Friday and then go on to meet the San Jose Missions for three games on Saturday and Sunday. Both series will be played at Municipal Stadium, 175 Maryal Drive, Salinas.

The Friday and Saturday games begin at 7 p.m. A doubleheader on Sunday will start at 1 p.m.

The Salinas club, a farm team of the California Angels, is in fourth place in the southern division of the California league.

"We're playing a lot better ball now and expect to be playing better than .500 by the end of the first half of the season," says General Manager Dick Walsh.

Regular tickets for the Angels games are $1.50 for general admission, $2 for box seats, and $1 for senior citizens, military personnel and children under 17. Children 14 and under may buy a season pass to all home games for $2. Passes may be purchased at Home Federal Savings and Loan, 710 Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey.

Tickets will be half price for families on Mondays and for ladies on Tuesdays.

Artist to greet visitors Sunday

Eidenberger etchings on exhibit in Carmel

The 80th birthday of Austrian artist Josef Eidenberger will be celebrated at a preview reception of his one-man show of etchings Sunday, June 3 at the Phillip Trapp Galleries, in the Paseo San Carlos, San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. Eidenberger will be present to greet visitors and inscribe etchings from 1-5 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Born in the small alpine village of Goisern, Austria, in 1899, Eidenberger began his career as a landscape painter, showing an intimate perception for the moods of the Austrian countryside. In 1923, he enrolled in the famed Graphic Academy of Art in Vienna where he studied under Professor Alfred Cossman.

Eidenberger's interests soon focused on copper engraving and ultimately etching as a medium. However, his love for color led him to the complicated process of color etching, where two or three color plates must be etched in addition to the black line plate. The intricate process requires the platelines to match perfectly on top of one another to leave a clear impression.

Greatly influenced by his contemporary, Luigi Kasimir, Eidenberger's technique has improved with each etching. In a burst of creativity, he completed 65 etchings during the past three years for a total lifetime collection of 300.

Carmel is Eidenberger's last stop on a 1979 tour of the United States before he returns to Vienna. His works have been exhibited in six major cities this year including Los Angeles, Denver and Nashville.

Eidenberger's etchings may be viewed from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. daily through June at the Phillip Trapp Galleries.

For further information, phone 625-1213.

Masteller paintings on exhibit

Paintings by Barry Masteller of Pacific Grove will be on display in the Alvarado Lobby of the Monterey Conference Center, 1 Portola Plaza, Monterey from June 1. The exhibits at the Conference Center are installed by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art as a community service and are presented under the auspices of the Monterey Conference Center Art Commission.

The exhibit may be viewed from noon-3:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

15 bands compete in ninth annual High School Jazz Band contest

California's best high school jazz bands and ensembles will perform in the ninth annual California All-Star High School Jazz Band Competition Friday and Saturday, June 1-2 at Monterey Peninsula College, Monterey.

Sponsored by the Monterey Jazz Festival, the competition presents 15 bands composed of students who compete for scholarships and special awards. Top high school players will also vie for a chance to participate in the Jazz Festival's All-Star Band in September.

The field of bands will be narrowed down to three finalists who will perform at an awards concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in the MPC Theatre. Competing this year is the 1978 winner, Bonita High School of La Verne, Calif., plus bands from Reseda, Santa Barbara, Palo Alto, Glendale and Huntington Beach.

In addition to the high school groups, the competition jurors will perform in a Judges' Concert on Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the MPC Theatre. Among the eight judges who will play are trumpeter Ray Brown, a former member of the Stan Kenton band; Mundell Lowe, a jazz guitarist who has toured California and Nevada and annually performs in the Jazz Festival's house band; and Jack Wheaton, current president of the National Association of Jazz Education.

Other events scheduled for the competition are the individual auditions for the Monterey Jazz Festival's All-Star Band Friday at 1 p.m. in the MPC Music Hall; combo competitions Saturday morning from 8:45-11 a.m.; and big band auditions conducted from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-3:30 p.m. in the MPC Theatre.

Everyone is welcome to the auditions and concerts at no charge. For further information, phone 373-3366.

Wine nomenclature storm brewing

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

WITHOUT INTENDING any facetious play-upon-words, we have heard, via the grapevine, that there is an impending storm brewing in the wine nomenclature world. The use of the generic terms "chablis" and "burgundy" and "champagne" will be challenged by French wine producers of those areas.

Years ago, the Treasury Department of the United States Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, in charge of all the language involved in wine label approval, decided that the word "champagne" had been in such general use denoting sparkling wine that it no longer designated exclusively an antique province in France. As long as the wine would carry the qualification of its place of origin, as "California Champagne" or "New York Champagne" the bureau would maintain our rights to the use of the title.

"Champagne" today is a perfectly legal-in-America generic term. Not so in Europe, nor with any of the Common Market countries with which France enjoys trade. Any wine beyond the controlled appellation boundaries of la belle Champagne must carry another title. From Germany, white sparkling wine is called sekt, and Italian editions of bubbly come forth as spumante.

Even the white sparkling wines of other provinces in France must scratch around for some other moniker: vin mousseux, as it was called in days before "Champagne" was attached to the wine, is a bit too esoteric. Subtles, like Brut, have Champagne connotation, and emerge on Spanish bottlings. France challenged Spain in the World Court at The Hague, and won a hands-down exclusivity to the word Champagne.

BUT WHAT ABOUT "Chablis" or "Burgundy," which are also French place names? Or are they, like champagne, of such general usage as to become generic terms?

Seeking to avoid any potential problems, from governments, our own or foreign, the San Martin Winery in Santa Clara County, Calif., is striding beyond even the most contentions consumer advocates and producing their generic table wines with complete revelation of grape sources and areas.

The San Martin Winery was established by the Felice family in 1892. Amid the plantings of prune, apricot, pear, cherry and walnut orchards were vineyards, and fields of strawberries and tomatoes. There were also a few acres of a rare Italian vine variety planted nowhere else in California called Montonico.

When he first came to the San Martin Winery as its winemaker and chief enologist in 1974, after the winery had been purchased by the Southdown conglomerate of Texas, Ed Friedrich came upon a considerable amount of pure Montonico which had been aging in wood, since 1967, when it had been made in the style of an Italian vin santo. That is had developed, the most extraordinary beyond-sherry attributes was obvious. With careful nurturing, like a talented teenager going through a fine finishing school, it made its debut in a special packaging and bottling to an immediate success.

There's more news now about the second edition of San Martin Montonico, made by Ed Friedrich as a vin santo varietal from these same fine vines in 1974. Still of that coppery hue, with a most extraordinary melange of tastes, like figs, dates, apricots, pineapple, with an incredible suggestion of lilac blossoms in the back of the bouquet, it has been aged in large European oak barrels for 16 months.

It's an afternoon or after-dinner wine to save for special friends, special moments, when you draw the gold-bronze labeled wine from your private reserves. It retails generally for about $7.50, has an alcohol-by-volume measure of 17.1 percent and a residual sweetness of 8.7 percent. Your wine merchant can order it for you.

SAN MARTIN WINERY is now in good national distribution, as one of the prize properties of the Norton Simon conglomerate today. Production has expanded at San Martin under Friedrich's guidance, from 2.5 million gallons per annum to 8.5 million gallons. The fermentation facilities have advanced in style with stainless steel temperature controls to make it among the most contemporary installations.

These delicately adjusted facilities for handling the juice of choice varietal grapes from select areas are especially designed to accommodate Friedrich's production of "soft" wines, low-alcohol varietals in which the freshness and berrylike charms of the wines are emphasized.

In Friedrich's native Germany, very often there was not enough sunshine to produce wines of over 9 percent alcohol. Here, in California, such gentle wines must be produced by the most artistic technology. The Soft Chenin Blanc and Johannisberg Riesling are already well known to thousands of wine lovers. The 1978 San Martin Soft Zinfandel, 9.4 percent alcohol, is a new and startling addition to this roster. To be sold for about $3.50, it's a wholly individual wine, translucent as a rose, with a little spritz, made with white wine techniques from Central Coast grapes.

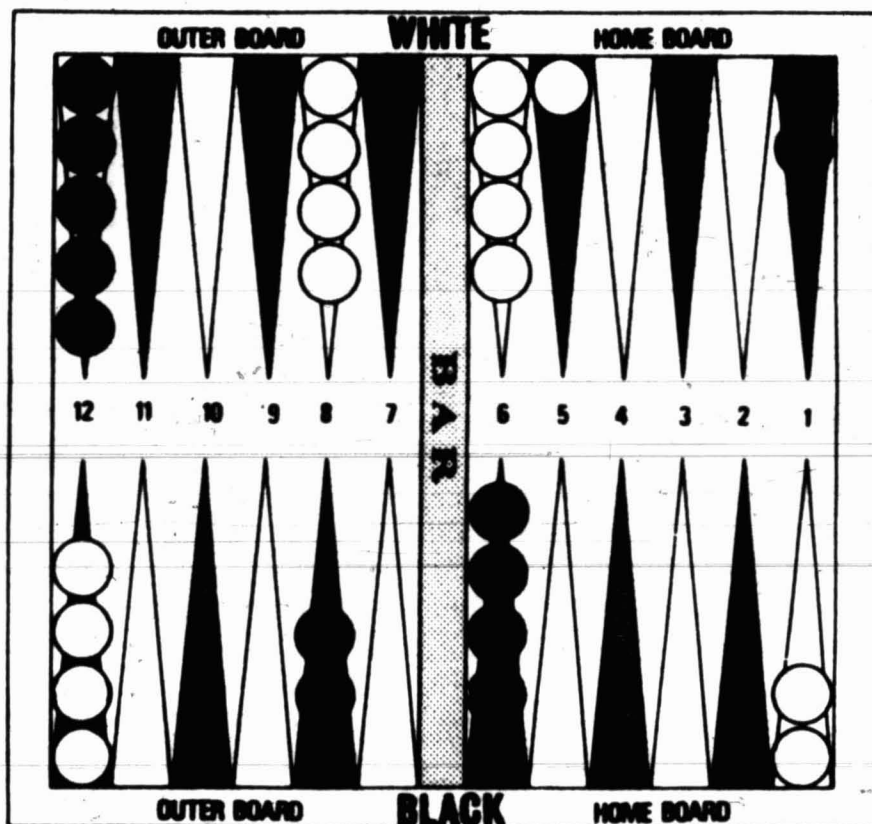

Just released, bound for certain fame, is Friedrich's 1977 Late Harvest Santa Clara County Semillon. There are 1,700 cases, but they'll disappear like dew before the sun once legions of wine lovers discover this Barsac-sweet, light golden wine, produced from Botrytised grapes. About $8, it adds to the dimensions of California's artistry in winemaking.

We borrowed that French geographic term "Barsac" to describe the wine for those long accustomed to Gallic nomenclature. To say it resembles a fine Chateau Coutet makes the focus sharper, and certainly makes the sting of the French connection in the world of wine a matter of argument.

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

Black rolls 2-2. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

Black has rolled an excellent number at an opportune moment. He has two fine ways to play his roll: 1) Make White's 5-point, activating both runners and putting an enemy man on the bar; or 2) he can hit the blot on White's 5-point with two of the 2's from the 1-point, and make his own 4-point with the other two.

Much of the early struggle in backgammon revolves around control of the two 5-points. Possession of the enemy 5-point makes it difficult for the opponent to bring his forces home safely. It secures an anchor in the enemy home board that assures that, even if he should hit one of your blots, you will always have a good point on which to re-enter. And it activates the runners and places them in a position from where they can conveniently continue the long road to their home board.

The alternative move, however, also has much to recommend it. Black's 4-point is next in importance to his 5-point (many experts prefer it to the bar-point). By hitting the blot and making a point inside his home board, Black makes it not only more difficult for White to re-enter, but also gets a good start toward building a blockade to trap the three men White has in Black's home board. And the man on White's 5-point will prove bothersome, because Black threatens to make that point and take complete command of the game. Taking all these factors into consideration makes this the preferred move.

TIP: When your opponent has a man on the bar and you can make a point in your home board, you usually won't find a better move.

Our Churches

WAYFARER

An Easy Way with Heretics is the title of the sermon to be delivered by the Rev. Paul R. Woudenberg at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services Sunday at the Church of the Wayfarer.

At the 9:30 service, the Church of the Wayfarer will award the second annual Wayfarer scholarship. Normally $1,000, the award has been divided into two awards of $500 each.

Receiving his portion of the scholarship will be David Menmuir, an engineering student at Monterey Peninsula College. He will be matriculating at the California Polytechnic Institute in San Luis Obispo in the fall.

The other winner, Theresa Thomas, a graduate of Carmel High School, is presently in Germany as part of an exchange student program and will receive her money upon her return. She will be attending Wellesly College as a pre-med student in the fall. Winners are selected from judging based on church and community service, as well as scholastic ability.

ALL SAINTS'

Pentecost will be celebrated on Sunday, June 3, at All Saints' Church, with services of the Eucharist at 8 and 10 a.m. The 10 a.m. service will be combining the 9 and 11 a.m. services. The Rev. David Hill, rector of the church, returning from a month's vacation, will be the celebrant at 10 a.m. Awards will be presented to pupils of the church school, which ends for the summer on Sunday.

After the 10 a.m. service, the birth of the Christian Church will be observed with a party in the parish hall and patio, with coffee and light refreshments being served. Slides of the past year's parish events will be shown.

PRESBYTERIAN

Pentecostal Sunday will be Choir Recognition Sunday. The 38-member Chancel Choir will give the entire 9:30 and 11 a.m. services, with the Rev. Deane Hendricks delivering a short pastoral meditation. Mrs. James Farlinger will direct the choir program.

COMMUNITY

No Problem—We Can Handle It is the topic of the message to be given by the Rev. James F. Bracher at the 10:30 a.m. service at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula. His text is from Judges 21:25. Sunday will be Membership and Family Sunday, and a reception for members and families will be given following the service.

The Women's Association luncheon will be Tuesday, June 5 at noon in the Fellowship Hall. A lecture on spices of the world will be given.

FIRST BAPTIST

The Rev. Roy McBeth will lead an intensive Bible study course on church leadership training for young adults at 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays in the home of David Eagle, 25180 Pine Hills Drive, Carmel Valley.

His topic for the sermon on Sunday at the 11 a.m. service will be Religion Without Hypocrisy. Evening services are on Sunday at 6 p.m.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Atrocities Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced is the subject of the lesson sermon at the 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. services on Sunday. Selections from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures will be read. The public is invited to all services.

OBITUARIES

MAYOTTA COMSTOCK

Mayotta Browne Comstock, a long time Carmel resident, died in Sacramento on Sunday, May 20 after a long illness. Mrs. Comstock, a resident of Carmel for more than 40 years, had moved to Sacramento about 15 years ago. She was 87 years old.

A native of Foresthill, she married Hugh White Comstock in Carmel in 1924. He was a prominent architect and builder famed for his development of the post-adobe method of construction. Mr. Comstock died in 1950.

A designer of rag and felt dolls, Mrs. Comstock's "totsy-totsies," as she called her designs, became so popular that buyers from across the country came to her home on Torres Street to order them. Comstock designed and built a small house for his wife's dolls in 1924, which is still standing on Torres between Fifth and Sixth.

She is survived by a sister, Elena Bishop of Sacramento.

HELEN FRANCES KELLY

Helen Frances Kelly died Sunday, May 20 at the Carmel Convalescent Hospital. A 21-year resident of the Monterey Peninsula, she was 86 years old.

Mrs. Kelly was born in Chicago. Her husband, John J. Kelly, died in Chicago in 1932.

Survivors include a son, Robert P. Gerdes of Highland Park, Ill., three grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

The family suggests contributions be made in Mrs. Kelly's memory to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, Box 7236, Carmel.

HALLIE MCGONIGAL (right) and Sandy Pratt at start of Powder Puff Derby in 1977, the last year of the national event.

Flying is a "dream job"

beautiful flight. I felt exuberant in the air, and I wanted to be having as much fun as the pilot was. I recalled the flights with my dad and also another trip while I was in Europe and had visited the cockpit. Everything clicked and I knew this was for me."

That was in February 1977. She came home, went directly to Del Monte Aviation, took the demonstration flight and signed up for lessons on the spot.

Six months, and much study and practice later, she had a private pilot license.

BUT SHE DIDN'T stop there. She earned a commercial license, an instrument rating (which she describes as the most difficult of all), flight instructor and multi-engine ratings. Each level required many hours in the air, untold hours of study, trips to San Jose for examinations, and a multitude of tests and check rides. She admits that it was hard work—"perhaps more difficult for me than for some because I don't have a scientific or technical background."

By this time Hallie was recognized at Del Monte Aviation for her competence and diligence as well as her pleasant personality. With the recommendation of her instructor, she was hired as one of four flight instructors.

MOST OF HER TIME at Del Monte is now spent instructing students to meet the requirement for a private pilot license.

Students at Del Monte learn to fly in a Cessna Pilot Center training program. "Air traffic control is so complex," Hallie points out, "that any flight course must be quite sophisticated. It demands a great deal of academic study as well as flight proficiency."

The Cessna instruction program consists of seven blocks of study, each including a ground instruction segment and a flight instruction segment. The ground instruction, or flight preparation, covers flight planning, navigation, radio procedures, flight rules and regulations, and weather. The student learns this material through use of audio-visual materials, a textbook and a workbook.

The actual flight instruction, in a 152 Cessna, is interspersed with the ground study.

"The first block of the program concerns familiarization with the training aircraft and its flight characteristics," says Hallie. "The student then progresses to basic maneuvers, local flight operations, precision flight and cross country."

A written quiz follows each block and there is a final exam at the end of block five. The student who passes this can proceed to blocks six and seven, flight proficiency, and review and recommendations, and take an FAA written exam. He is then ready for the final exam by an FAA-designated inspector. This test is thorough and lasts five or six hours, but the successful student has the prize—a private license.

The time required to complete the work for the private pilot license varies with the student and the program used. The Cessna plan requires 35 flying hours, but most students need more time in the air interspersed with the ground study; this program can take anywhere from two to six months.

Hallie explains that the cost of the course also varies. Del Monte quotes a price of about $1200 for its course, but that is based on the minimum number of hours. If the student needs more hours in the air, and more time with the instructor either in the air or on the ground—and most students do—the price climbs.

HALLIE TEACHES 14 students right now; two of them are women. She has a businesslike but friendly manner which sets most of them at ease immediately and she doesn't think any of them have objected to taking lessons from a woman. In fact, she believes men feel a certain sense of relief if they don't have to compete with another man.

ARE THERE SPECIAL ABILITIES and requirements to become a flyer? There are minimum age requirements—16 for a student certificate and 17 for a private license—but nothing in the regulations about a maximum. Physical handicaps are not automatic barriers; the ability to control the airplane is what counts.

"As far as education is concerned," Hallie says, "the regulations say only that an applicant must be able to read, speak and understand the English language."

You need not be a mechanic or possess any mechanical skill or aptitude. Nor do you need the physical coordination of an athlete. "Just about anyone who can learn to drive a car can learn to fly," says the Cessna promotional brochure.

Hallie says her only anxious moments have come as she watches her students solo for the first time. "I stand down on the field and I watch every little wiggle and movement the aircraft makes. I know exactly what the student is or isn't doing. Then I see a big 727 taxiing down the runway and I pray my student remembers what we studied and practiced."

IN ADDITION TO TEACHING, Hallie also is one of nine charter pilots who work for Del Monte. Under the direction of the chief pilot, Corll, she gets assignments that take her from Seattle to San Diego and as far east as Denver.

"Hallie does a good job for Del Monte," Corll says.

"However, some of the commercial airlines hire women just because they are women," he says. "Their selection process for women is different than for men," he points out, "and consequently some of their women pilots drop out."

For women pilots in this area there is the "99s." Approximately 45 women belong to the Monterey Bay Chapter of the international organization founded by Amelia Earhart in the 1920s. The group participates in fly-ins, races and a number of other projects.

One 99er has her own charter company, another flies prisoners for the county of Monterey, others fly for business reasons and some fly just for the pleasure of it.

Quite a few of the 99ers participated in the Powder Puff Derby, the cross-country flying event for women which was discontinued two years ago.

Hallie flew in the Powder Puff Derby in the last year of the national event and describes it as being a lot of fun.

But then Hallie thinks everything about flying is lots of fun. "This is the dream job," she says. "I love every minute of it—and they pay me."

Bonsai trees on exhibit

Delicately sculpted bonsai trees will be displayed at the annual Bonsai Exhibition Sunday, June 3 in the Monterey Peninsula Buddhist Temple, 1155 Noche Buena St., Seaside, from 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Everyone is welcome; there is no charge.

More than 100 members of the Monterey Bonsai Club will exhibit their miniature creations, including junipers, Japanese white pines and Monterey pines which have been trimmed from top and roots, then formed to the gardeners' wishes.

The club has also planned a demonstration at 3 p.m. which will be followed by a free drawing for door prizes. Tea and fortune cookies will be served.

For further information, phone 372-3158.

Annual Fiesta de los Padres celebrated Sunday in Monterey

The festivities of early California mission days will be revived at the 15th annual Fiesta de los Padres, a celebration of the founding of San Carlos Cathedral, on Sunday, June 3, from noon-5 p.m. at 550 Church St., Monterey.

Guests will enjoy a chicken barbecue with all the trimmings, continuous entertainment by mariachi bands and other musical groups, games and bazaar booths plus drawings for prizes.

The historic cathedral was founded June 3, 1770, the day Fr. Junipero Serra and Capt. Gaspar de Portola claimed the Monterey Peninsula for Spain. Typical of all the earliest buildings in Monterey, the first church was inside the grounds of the original Presidio.

Within a year, Fr. Serra moved the mission to its present location near the mouth of the Carmel River, where it has since been designated as Carmel Mission Basilica.

For a number of years, the original church in Monterey served as the Royal Presidio Chapel, ministering the garrison and later the first families of immigrants from Mexico. It was initially named Mission San Carlos Borromeo. When it ceased to be the Royal Chapel, it was renamed San Carlos Church.

Throughout early Monterey mission history, an annual fiesta was part of its tradition. The event brought together the soldiers, families and Indians living in the vicinity to give thanks for a bountiful year. In later years, the custom was discontinued.

The tradition of the fiesta was restored several years ago when the city became the headquarters for the Catholic Church's Monterey Diocese. The event is now scheduled each year on the Sunday nearest June 3, the anniversary of Fr. Serra's founding of the Mission San Carlos Borromeo.

There will be no admission charge for the fiesta, but the chicken barbecue will cost $3.50 per person.

For more information, phone 373-2628.

Skateboarders plan trip Sunday

A skateboard trip for young people in grades seven through 12 will be offered by the Monterey Park and Recreation Department, Sunday, June 10.

The group, which will leave from the Monterey Youth Center in El Estero Park complex at 9 a.m., will spend the morning at Winchester Skateboard Park in San Jose and the afternoon at Victoria Skateboard Park in Milpitas.

According to Denise Swett at the Recreation Center, the department hopes to sponsor a similar trip each month.

Cost of the all-day outing is $5 for bus transportation, plus $10 for membership at the two parks. A membership card will permit the holder to enter at no cost for the remainder of the year.

More information, registration forms and parental permission slips may be obtained at Sunshine Free Style Sports and Josselyn's Bike Shop in New Monterey, or at the Monterey Youth Center. Registration forms and fees will be accepted only at the Youth Center.

For more information, phone 372-5112.

Coin show this weekend

More than $1 million in valuable coins which tell the colorful story of American money will be displayed at the Monterey Peninsula Coin Club's fifth annual Coin Show Saturday and Sunday, June 2-3 at the Holiday Inn, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Hours are 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

The displays, collected by numismatists from throughout California, will include actual samples of rare Indian wampum and currency brought to this country by early settlers.

In addition, there are famous "pieces of eight" silver coins from which the expressions "two bits" and "four bits" originated, complete sets of Confederate currency, bills issued by local, state and national banks during the "wildcat era" of the mid-1800s, and notes of the Federal Reserve Board and U.S. Treasury.

Any guest who brings a coin show ad coupon will be awarded a buffalo nickel.

For more information, phone 659-2319.

Cooking demos planned for weekend

Learn to inject meats with the Culinaire hypo or operate a pasta machine at the Cooks' Club demonstrations Saturday and Sunday, June 2-3 at the Peppercorn in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to the free programs.

Culinaire company will demonstrate how to inject tenderizing butter and marinades into poultry and steaks on Saturday; noodles will be made on the pasta machine on Sunday. Demonstrations continue from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. each day.

Sierra Club plans excursions, hikes to San Juan Bautista, Mt. Madonna

Hikes in the San Juan Bautista area and to the summit of Mt. Madonna in the Santa Cruz Mountains are planned by the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club this weekend. Everyone is welcome to join the free excursions.

The 11-mile round-trip hike over the Old Stage Road to San Juan Bautista is scheduled Saturday, June 2. Hikers may enjoy a relaxed lunch in San Juan Bautista or visit the town's historical sites.

Meet at 8:30 a.m. at Cinema 70 parking lot, Del Monte Center, Monterey; or at 9:30 a.m. at the intersection of San Juan Road and Crazy Horse Canyon Road, 35 miles north of Monterey on Highway 1. Bring sturdy walking shoes, water and a sack lunch if you like.

For more information, phone leaders Chet and Bev Gadaire, 375-8995.

An eight-mile hike with a 900-foot elevation gain to the summit of Mt. Madonna is planned Sunday, June 3.

Hikers will meet at the Cinema 70 parking lot at 8 a.m.; or at 9:30 a.m. near Sprig Lake on Highway 152, six miles west of Gilroy. Bring lunch, water and hiking boots.

For more information, phone 624-3510.

Admission free

College Chorus gives final concert Sunday

The Monterey Peninsula College Chorus will give its final concert of the spring semester Sunday, June 3 at 8:15 p.m. in the MPC Music Hall.

Dr. Harvey Marshall conducts the chorus, which will present works by von Weber, Hanson, Mozart, Donizetti, Rossini, Wagner, Verdi, Bobrowitz and Porter. The program will include psalms, excerpts from operas and a rock cantata.

Featured in a variety of solos, duets, quintets and quartets will be chorus members Mark Burroughs, tenor, Michael Colburn, baritone, Malcolm Smith, tenor, Candis Hess, soprano, Chris Hall, mezzo-soprano, Gayla Menetrey, mezzo-soprano, Stephanie Myszak, soprano, Deborah Rye, mezzo-soprano, Ted Hamel, baritone and Katherine McBride, soprano.

Camille Olaeta is the piano accompanist, with appearances by David Graham, guitar, George Peterson, bass guitar and Michael Snyder, drums.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend. For further information, phone 649-1150.

LOCAL CELEBRITIES: the charming pencil drawing of the southern sea otter, a delightful resident of Monterey Peninsula waters, was created by Carmel artist Andrew Kozak and used in the 1978 edition of Wildlife and America, published by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the U.S. Forest Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Kozak, a Carmel resident since 1967, is widely known for his realistic studies of wild and domestic animals. His work is on view locally at The Gallery of Who's Who in Art in the Pine Inn Building, Lincoln and Sixth, Carmel.

FREE WANT ADS

For subscribers to the Carmel Pine Cone

A SPECIAL OFFER TO OUR VALUED SUBSCRIBERS

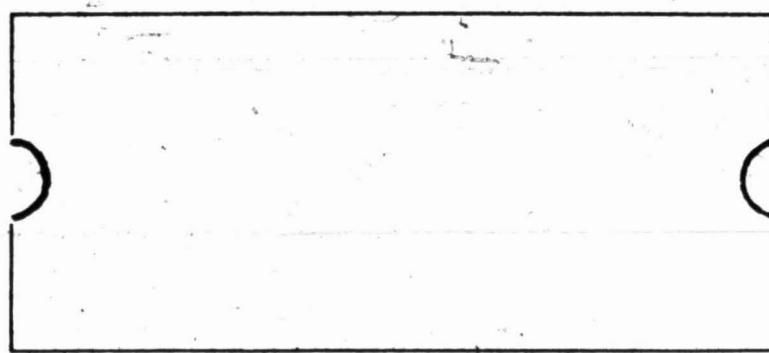

The Pine Cone is happy to be here and we always look forward to meeting our subscribers. As a gesture of our thanks for your continued support, we invite you to have a FREE WANT AD every week in your paper.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

RULES:

Free want ads are for person-to-person sales only. Ads for businesses or real estate will not be accepted. Free ads must be written on this form only and delivered to our office by 3 p.m. Monday (no phone ads, please). Free ads are limited to 16 words. The Pine Cone is not responsible for errors in free ads. Limit is one ad per subscriber per week. To run the same ad the following week, a new ad on a new form must be submitted. Publisher reserves the right to accept any free ad for any reason. Free ads must be placed in the following classifications: Antiques, Autos for Sale, Boats for Sale, Lost & Found, Misc. for Sale, Pets & Livestock, Special Notices, Wanted, Yard Sales.

LIKE IT NATURAL?

That's this home -- 2200 square feet of natural redwood, sandblasted and hand-sanded for the beauty of natural wood all around you. In addition, there are three bedrooms and baths, a professionally-equipped kitchen, an ocean view, and a lot large enough to build a guest house. Call now on this beauty, south of Ocean and short blocks to the beach. Listed at $260,000. It's waiting for you.

LIKE A VIEW?

This building site on Carmel Point's prestigious Scenic Road offers a truly expansive view from the Carmel River Beach to Monastery Beach to the headlands of Point Lobos. You are part of it, too, not just a looker from miles away. You could walk across the street to the beach to sunbathe, to listen to the surf and the gulls. On foggy days, just light a fire in the fireplace and enjoy the view. At $240,000, worth the price.

ANOTHER VIEW --

In Skyline Forest, Monterey, there is a home designed for the special family with growing children and the desire for the best in amenities -- a dramatic view of Monterey's Fisherman's Wharf and the sweep of Monterey Bay, the lights of the city at night, trees, and quiet. Its five bedrooms and three baths, lovely and tasteful decorating, complete kitchen make this the ideal home. Priced for yesterday at $219,500. When you call, ask about the financing -- excellent.

STARTING OUT OR SLOWING DOWN?

Do it in Pacific Grove in this newly remodeled two-bedroom, one-bath home. The kitchen is new, the home is ready to move into, the lot is large enough to allow additions. At $82,500, the price is right. Call now for a private showing.

3 BDRMS, 2 BATHS, NEAR TOWN,
$147,500

This home is just 5 blocks from Carmel Post Office and just south of Woods School, making it ideal for the family with school-age children. One bedroom and bath have a separate outside entrance (could be rented.) An 80'x100' lot, wood siding and paneling, a shake roof, oak floors, central heat are some of the quality features of this older Carmel home. There's a fireplace, of course. At $147,500 you can't go wrong.

3 BRS, 2 BATHS, SO. CARMEL HILLS,
$139,500

If you're in the market for an inexpensive home, but you want a GOOD house in a GOOD neighborhood, you'll have a hard time to do better than this. There's a large living room, a dining room, a double garage, shake roof, wood exterior, real fireplace and much, much more.

2 BRS, 2 1/2 BATHS, PADRE LANE, PEBBLE BEACH

This is a custom-designed, custom-built home on a secluded site about a half-mile from Cypress Point Club. It has a 180° view of the pine forest through which the ocean is also visible. There's a large, formal dining room with double doors opening into a beautiful, large beamed-ceiling living room, making a traffic pattern that lends itself to entertaining both very large and very small groups. Structural features include thick, random width oak plank floors, in and outdoor intercom system, circulating hot water, central vacuum system, Honeywell electronic air cleaner, Carmel stone fireplace and much, much more. At $395,000 this has to be one of the best values in "The Real Pebble Beach."

2 BR, 2 BATH CARMEL CONDO,
$137,500

This is a two-story unit in High Meadow Terrace. It has an attached garage with electric-eye opener. There's a dining ell and a balcony bedroom. The unit has architectural style, and the complex has a heated pool and two tennis courts. Exclusive.

CARMELO NR. 12th: 2 LOTS 4 BRS, $237,500

Even if the house is worthless (and some insensitive people might say it is), two lots South of Ocean, 2 blocks from the beach HAVE to be worth $237,500. Any way you look at it, this is an interesting property: about 1,600 sq. ft. of authentic Carmel board-and-batt plus 3 baths, a dining room and two fireplaces. Fire up your imagination; bring in the sandblaster or the bulldozer, but move quickly or you'll miss this goodie.

SOUTH OF OCEAN, NEAR TOWN
$119,500

This 77-year-old Carmel cottage is on Lincoln St. between Seventh and Eighth. A fixer-upper, yes, but you can have a perfectly livable, small-one-bedroom home for little more than land value. It's tenant-occupied, so we need an appointment to show.

3 BRS, SUNDRIDGE PINES IN PEBBLE
BEACH

Here's a chance to buy an excellent home in an excellent neighborhood for the very low price of $165,000. The house is about 2 years old, the rooms are large, there's a double garage, THE HOME HAS STYLE, and there's a very pleasant view of the pine forest. Any way you look at this home, it's a worthwhile proposition.

2 BRS, DINING ROOM, CARMEL
$136,500

This is a neat and tidy home of approximately 1100 sq. ft., located in what is sometimes called the "banana belt." The house has a formal dining room, wood siding, double garage, carpet over oak floors, a utility room wired for a dryer, and a secluded patio. The house is nicely landscaped and in sound condition. $136,500.

Ten Ways to Shake Up Your Life

Fortunately, tastes vary. Needs change. What's just right at one time is all wrong at another. And nowhere does this show up more clearly than in the place where you live. If you've been thinking about changing your lifestyle, here are 10 different ways to do it. See if one fits you.

Small House in Pacific Grove

Recently remodeled, this place has a Victorian past. New kitchen, new wiring, new treatment has brought it up to now. Two bedrooms, two very nice baths. Close to downtown, could be used for professional offices. $89,500.

Big House in Carmel Valley

Nearly new, modern design, three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. Space is organized according to function: master suite in one wing; two more bedrooms, bath and family room in another; living, dining rooms and kitchen in another. On one acre just two miles from Highway 1. $239,500.

Older Home in Carmel

Up near Carmel Woods, this house has two bedrooms, large bath, long living room with fireplace, separate garage. Fine as it is, but an imaginative buyer with time to spend could make it great. $129,500.

Aerie in San Benancio Canyon

Unlimited views from this highly placed, brand new, timbered house. There are three bedrooms, three baths, a den, upswept living room, almost airborne kitchen, big family room. A fantastic setting—day or night! $289,500.

Cottage in Valley Village

Nestled in a hollow in Carmel Valley Village, this romantic little home has a cozy kitchen, large living room with fireplace, bedroom, skylighted bath, and extra room for sewing, den, or guest. $81,500.

Retirement Home in Carmel

South of Ocean. Superbly constructed two-bedroom, two-bath dwelling with many custom touches. English garden, views of white water and Valley mountains. Exceptional quality on a smaller (and more handle-able) scale. $198,500.

Chalet at Incline Village

Completely furnished (even dishes and towels) four-bedroom, two-bath mountain retreat. Near Lake Tahoe, golf course, and ski run. Perfect for year-round vacationing for you and your friends. $130,000.

Hillside House in Upper Valley

About 1/2-mile east of Carmel Valley Village, four-bedroom, two-bath home high enough for sweeping views. Country kitchen with view corner, dining room, picture-windowed living room. $149,500.

Condominium in High Meadow

Carefree living in stylish two-bedroom, two-bath, beautifully decorated unit. Swimming pool and tennis courts close by. A sophisticated home in easy range of Carmel and Monterey. $145,000.

Family Home in Carmel

Easy walking distance to Ocean Avenue and the beach. Two-story Tudor-style house with soaring living room, dining room, kitchen, family room, four bedrooms and two baths. $239,500.

One thing about all 10 of these: they are all located in one of the world's most beautiful areas. You can't go wrong!

County pushes for 'scenic highway' in Hatton Canyon

WILL A RE-DESIGN of the Hatton Canyon Freeway near Carmel be in state plans for the next five years? We ought to know by the end of June.

County Supervisors Sam Farr of Carmel and Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas accompanied Public Works Director Bob McClain to Oakland last week to make a plea for several highway projects in the county.

Construction of any state-funded projects must be recommended in the California Transportation Commission five-year plan before money is appropriated for the work.

The county officials asked the commission on May 22 to consider adding seven county projects to the five-year plan.

The Hatton Canyon project would create a four-lane section of Highway 1 between Carpenter Street and Rio Road, parallel to and east of the present two-lane route.

Construction of the highway is in county road plans, is recommended by the Carmel Valley Master Plan committee, and is a priority of the Monterey County Transportation Commission.

The city of Carmel opposes the road.

FARR SAID he asked that the state provide about $2 million in 1981-82 to move a Carmel Sanitary District sewer main out of the road's path, re-design the freeway to a four-lane "scenic highway" and prepare an environmental impact report on the project.

The project is third on the county's priority list, after freeway construction along Highway 101 from Salinas north to the San Benito County line and a short freeway section along Highway 68 near Toro Park.

Farr said he told the commission much of the opposition to the Hatton Canyon route is because of its current design and the freeway designation.

If the road is re-designed with less environmental impact, he believes opposition would be reduced.

Farr said the road project would alleviate serious traffic congestion problems on the present two-lane Highway 1 at the mouth of the Carmel Valley.

APPROVAL OF the project could also provide space for a county corporation yard for road repair supplies and equipment. Other uses possible in the area around the highway would be a trash transfer station and a "park and ride" parking area for commuters who would switch to bus travel.

Farr said inclusion of Hatton Canyon in the five-year plan is needed before the California Department of Transportation will take the project off the shelf.

Once that happens, re-design of the road could follow, he told his fellow supervisors after the morning appearance in Oakland.

Farr said the commissioners "asked questions and seemed very interested" in the county project. There was no commitment from the panel to include the route in long-range road plans.

The commission will meet at the end of June to decide which additional projects should go in the state five-year plan. Their recommendation will be a policy statement to the governor about construction projects that he should include in his annual budget package.
